PHENIX CITY, Ala., March 26.—This bawling, bawdy, brazen town, across the muddy Chattahoochee from Columbus is being forced to mend its evil ways, and the suffering it is going through is something pitiful to see.

They didn't think it could happen in Phenix City, free all these years to fight and drink and gamble and trade in the poisoned flesh of hard-eyed women who flock to it from everywhere, and the men who run the tonks and jooks and smoky dives can't yet quite figure what is happening.

But it has happened, and is happening, and tonight, if the law be firm, marks the end of an era in which lawlessness and vice flaunted itself here as brazenly as ever it flourished in the hell towns of the old west, in Natchez under the hill in the steamboating days, in old New Orleans in its lurid prime.

Verbal Bombs Dropped.

It happened last night when Sheriff Shannon Burch, one law enforcement officer this side the river marched from one end of the town to the other, dropping the same verbal bombshell at each place.

"Get the women out of here," he said. "No more women waitresses. Hire men. Get all the women out except the one's that's kin to you, beginning tomorrow night."

That order broke the back of Phenix City. That's the reason that the nickel pianolas tinkle disconsolately from Beechie Howard's tonight, that from behind the curtains of the Merryland where Sunday a six-foot eight inch giant cut the throat of one man and slashed two more, comes no sound or boisterous laughter, no shuffle of dancing feet. That's the reason the Blue Bonnet is quiet, Dick's Place is sombre, Pat Murphy's is silent as a tomb and all over Phenix City and her Siamese twin, Girard, a solemn stillness lies.

Women Main Commodity.

For Phenix City as a hot spot travels on its women, its gambling has been out since early March, but that didn't hurt. Early in the week the Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board suspended liquor licenses of 20 places. But that was not the ultimate tragedy, for Phenix City sold illegal liquor through all the long years of prohibition and nobody could stop it. But if the women go, the town as a sin center is ruined. For

This is one of the typical scenes which the Alabama state government has ordered blacked out in Phenix City, Ala. The United States Public Health Service has opened war on them preliminary to the army maneuvers which will radiate from Fort Benning within the next few weeks. Women, say the officials, bring trouble to the boys in khaki. Girl waitresses must be replaced by men. The clean-up campaign may mean the end of Phenix City as a "sin center."

FLOG WITNESSES BEING PROTECTED

Boykin Aides Keep on Alert Against Any At- tempts to Intimidate.

A new element of surprise entered the Fulton grand jury's probe of wholesale floggings late yesterday afternoon as determined inquiry was begun into circumstances indicating efforts to intimidate witnesses.

Close inspection was being made of all persons showing an unexplained interest in proceedings on the third floor of the courthouse where the inquisitorial body meets. Visitors to witness rooms, loiterers and even casual passers-by were being checked over unostentatiously by aides of Solicitor General John A. Boykin, who is vigorously pressing the inquiry.

Two men were understood to have confessed, and, in addition, identities of two persons present at the savage beating of Gaston were considered established.

The solicitor general termed a story printed Tuesday concerning four alleged confessions "entirely misleading," and declared "it gives to the public an impression that is absolutely false."

Harold Sheats, a county attorney, served as counsel for Raymond (Slim) Bryan, indicted on two counts as a flogger, in an effort to have his bail reduced from $10,000 to $5,000. The petition came before Judge Paul S. Etheridge, and hearing was deferred until 2 o'clock this afternoon as the solicitor's staff was deeply immersed in the grand jury's activities.

BLAST ON DESTROYER.
NEWPORT, R. I., March 26.—(AP)—An explosion in an after deckhouse of the U. S. navy's neutrality destroyer King today left one sailor missing—apparently blown overboard—and six others burned, one critically.

Farmers Plan Intensified Drive To Stop Erosion by Pasturage

Balanced Farm Labor the Year Around Discussed by Livestock Association Directors at Meeting Here.

An intensified campaign to convert eroded and abandoned north Georgia hillside and gulches into "paying pastures" for farmers of 26 counties comprising the Cherokee Livestock Association was discussed yesterday by organization directors meeting at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

T. O. Asbury, of McDonough, association president, emphasized that an intelligently pursued livestock program will reclaim "lost acres," resulting from erosion and depletion of the soil, will balance farm labor and will add another ready money crop to farming interests.

He related how his home county, Henry, has established a pasture loan bank from which it proposes to stake farmers to development of pasture lands in connection with a resurgent livestock interest in that community and urged other communities to establish similar funds.

Financing Available.
Asserting that the Henry County Pasture Land Bank has about $4,000 available for loans, Asbury said the organization proposes to create the sum as a revolving fund to be loaned planters for periods up to five years.

"We are going to repasture and reclaim hundreds of abandoned farm lands through this system, and we are going to make those idle acres productive again," he said.

Channing Cope, who owns a large farm in Newton county, proposed that an exchange division of the organization be established to assist in propagation of stock and swine. He

BULBS DISCUSSED AT GARDEN SCHOOL

Constitution - Sponsored Spring Event Opens With Large Attendance.

There wasn't a tuberose or a daffodil in sight, there wasn't even a ranunculus or a rain lily on the platform, yet the atmosphere of the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium yesterday morning was full of thoughts of the sweet scent of the flowers of spring as Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown addressed the first of a three-day session of The Constitution's Annual Spring Garden School.

Mrs. Crown, had a large, attentive audience, as she described gardens and discussed their planting and care. She had displays of bulbs, tubers and fibrous roots which are now ready for spring planting and the stage was set with shrubs, garden furniture and implements.

Constant Watering.

She stressed the necessity of constant watering and plant feeding and discussed many amaryllis varieties, oxalis, Peruvian daffodils, gladioli, dahlias, tuberous begonias, and other flowers suited to spring planting. The summer hyacinth, blackberry lily, and Guernsey lily, the latter for fall blooming, were also described by Mrs. Crown.

The new fertilizers for lawns, trees, shrubs and flowers, vegetables and fruits, were discussed and a new dye, to be used on roots of white flowers, such as tuberoses, was recommended by Mrs. Crown.

The Sylvan Hills Garden Club, Mrs. C. O. Ashton, president, won the daily prize of $15 for the largest proportional attendance. Today's class, at 10 o'clock this morning, will be on "Annuals and Their Place."

French Newspapers Urge Closing of Soviet Em- bassy; Allies Believed Preparing for Action.

By The Associated Press.

Strained relations between Russia and France appeared early today to have reached the breaking point, with semi-official dispatches from Moscow stating that the Soviet ambassador to France, Jakob Surits, had been "freed from his functions as Soviet ambassador in France."

The dispatches said the French government had declared his presence in Paris no longer was desirable.

French officials refused to confirm or deny immediately that the government had formally requested Moscow to recall Surits, who has been in Paris since April of 1937.

Several newspapers in Paris are urging the government to close the Soviet embassy in Paris and the campaign to break off diplomatic relations with Russia is gaining headway.

The newspapers were prompted by Premier Paul Reynaud's declaration in the chamber of deputies last Friday that Germany has been "aided by the treason of the Soviets."

To Leave Quickly.

Surits, who has stuck to his post despite the rising French feeling against Russia, is expected to leave quickly for Moscow.

Informed sources considered it unlikely that the French government would approve the nomination of any Soviet envoy as successor to the recalled ambassador.

Paul Naggar, the French ambassador to Russia, already has left his post, having returned to Paris ostensibly on sick leave.

Meanwhile, indications that the Allies might be laying plans to force action on Adolf Hitler emerged last night from the almost-static European war scene. First, Premier Paul Reynaud, in a radio speech presented his new cabinet to the French nation with the emphatic assertion that it was a "war government" whose one goal is to "beat the enemy." He promised to "make war and make it in every field."

Second, Britain was concentrating her North sea destroyer and submarine squadrons on the Skagerrak, an arm of the North sea lying in the Baltic. She apparently intends not only to close the blockade around the Reich but, perhaps, to lure Germany's fleet into battle.

Second Protest.
Eight or nine British destroyers were reported seen twice in Norwegian waters on Good Friday when German ships were passing the coast. Norway has lodged a second protest in London against alleged violation of her neutral waters within the last few days.

Both the land and sea fronts on the European war were quieter than usual. Premier Reynaud in his radio talk accused Hitler of being ready "to attack the economic independence of the Balkan countries. He added that if France allowed Germany to gain her ends in southeastern Europe, it would "mean the end of liberty and the end of France."

Action-hungry Britons, who would welcome naval action in northern waters, also are demanding more forcefulness in the diplomatic field.

U. S. Court Balks Governor on Dam

VINITA, Okla., March 26.—(AP)—A three-judge federal court today balked at least until May 6 Governor Leon C. Phillips' attempts to halt construction of the $20,000,000 Grand River dam, but the Governor declared he was "not discouraged."

The court continued in force until May 6 a temporary restraining order obtained by the government against Phillips and other state officials in the bitter "state's rights war" over payment of damages to roads and bridges to be inundated by the dam. The court said it would give its decision then on a temporary injunction against Phillips.

President's Cold Better, and His Temperament Down to Normal.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's cold was so much better today that he considered leaving late this week for a fortnight's rest at Warm Springs, Georgia.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said the chief executive was "all right." The fever which had persisted for two weeks had subsided and Mr. Roosevelt's temperature was back to normal. But his physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, still thought it best for the President to remain in his room, away from crowds.

Mr. Roosevelt had no definite plans for the Warm Springs trip, but Early said the President hoped to leave by the end of the week.

Should he depart before Sumner Welles returns from Europe, it was considered probable that the undersecretary of state would also go to Warm Springs.

MAN LOSES RACE TO BUS AND DEATH

Farmer Dashes Across Road and Is Struck; Had Waited One Hour.

By AL SHARP,
Staff Sports Writer.

ROCK SPRINGS, Ga., March 26. The bus came over a hill and started down.

A man ran from a store. He was running across the road to catch the bus.

The horn blew. The man ran faster. The bus swerved. The bus driver shouted.

The man disappeared from view.

The bus lurched to a stop, rocking from side to side. Its wheels sank in the mud off the right side of the road.

We got out with the other passengers.

Sprawled on Back.

Sprawled on his back was a man. His face and head were cut and bleeding. He was gasping for breath.

A big fellow came up. He was dressed in overalls. Ten or fifteen gathered.

"Don't move him," said the big fellow. "It's the wrong thing to do. Let the ambulance men handle him."

"No phone, you say? Well, send some one after the nearest ambulance," the bus driver urged.

Waited Hour.

"He'd been waiting for the bus more than an hour," a woman from the store volunteered.

The ambulance came. The man was hustled into the back.

A police chief arrived, then a deputy or a sheriff. They took notes.

Motorists Stop.
Motorists stopped to see what had happened.

"He was about 55," said the big fellow.

A woman picked up an old pipe beside the bus. It must have been the man's who was waiting for the bus. The bowl was skinned.

The ambulance driver came back in an automobile. "He was dead before we got him to the hospital in Chattanooga," he told the police chief.

"There are 35,000 killed every year," said one of the passengers, "and you just have to hope you're not one of them."

A friend came by. We started for Atlanta in his car.

EX-RAIL DEAD.
PALO ALTO, Cal., March 26.—(AP)—Michael Harrison Cahill, 66, who rose from messenger boy to the presidency of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, died today. He retired six years ago.

May 4 Is Entry Deadline for Candidates; Public To Pass on $750,000 School Bond Issue.

By the overwhelming vote of 48 for to 18 against, the Fulton County Democratic Executive Committee yesterday set Wednesday, June 5, as the date for the county primary in which officials will be nominated for 15 county offices, a 76-man executive committee will be elected and the voters outside Atlanta will pass on a $750,000 bond issue for improving county schools.

The action on the June 5 date surprised even proponents of the early primary drive, and came after the committee had defeated two other dates for the primary—September 4 and September 11. The action was taken in a packed courtroom with more than a score of proponents of a late primary in the audience.

To Submit Bond Issue.

Jere A. Wells, county school superintendent, said he submitted the petition for school bond issue meeting of the board of education. It is expected the board will set the date for June 5.

After the primary date had been set, committee members made short work of voting to close entrance lists at noon Saturday, May 4, and deciding to meet at noon Thursday, June 6, to consolidate the vote and declare results. The closing date was specified as daylight saving time.

September 4 Date Tabled.

Soon after the session opened Hughes Spalding, chairman of a special subcommittee of the executive committee, reported and made a strong appeal to set September 4, the date recommended unanimously by the committee, as the primary date.

He moved adoption of the September 4 date, and William Brandt, of Poole's district, moved the matter be tabled. Brandt's motion carried by a vote of 35 for to 17 against.

Then came several strategic maneuvers. Brandt moved that the primary date be fixed for June 5. This was followed by an amendment by Spalding that it be fixed at September 4, and Judge J. Wilson Parker, committee secretary, affixed a second amendment calling for the election on September 11.

Spalding Snowed Under.

Judge Parker's effort lost by a vote of only 5 for to 60 against on a roll call, and Spalding's motion was snowed under by a vote of 18 for to 47 against, the exact vote by which the June 5 date was selected on the next ballot.

When Brandt initiated the move for the June 5 primary, William A. Lynn, of Bryant's district, took the floor to urge it. He told committee members that the schools of the county are in more or less of an emergency, said WPA would expend $2,500,000 on county schools if the $750,000 school bond issue is voted.

The Atlanta League of Women Voters issued a statement condemning the action of the committee.

Spalding took the floor to urge the committee to "keep faith with the voters, who by a two-to-one majority voted against a spring primary."

Members of the Fulton County Democratic Executive Committee are shown above as they voted to table a recommendation of a special subcommittee that the county primary be held September 4. They then set June 5 as the voting date. Hughes Spalding, subcommittee chairman, demanded and forced through a move to record the roll call. The action on the June 5 date came as a surprise even to proponents of the early primary drive.

U.S. Right To Try Torture Case Will Be Decided by June Court

SPALDING EXPECTS FULL PEACH CROP

Recent Cold Wave Did Minor Damage.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GRIFFIN, Ga., March 26.—Despite yesterday's 26-degree weather, Spalding and other middle Georgia counties should produce a full peach crop this year, barring further extreme cold, Georgia Experiment Station officials said today.

After Dr. H. L. Cochran, peach expert at the station, had inspected a general cross-section of more than a dozen varieties, Director H. P. Stuckey, announced a full peach crop should be produced in this area if there is no more ice and heavy frost.

The cold ice yesterday killed a large number of peach blossoms, which already were wide open, Dr. Stuckey said, but he pointed out that only approximately 15 to 25 per cent of the blossoms are open yet.

METHODIST CONCLAVE SLATED IN SAVANNAH

MACON, Ga., March 26.—(P)—Savannah today was selected for the South Georgia Methodist conference next November at a meeting of a committee here.

The Rev. Horace T. Freeman, of Valdosta, committee chairman, said that for the first time in conference history the city selected would not be asked to pay the expenses of entertaining delegates at the meeting.

Judge Delays Action on Demurrer of Po-liceman.

The precedent-setting attempt of a civil-liberties-conscious United States Department of Justice to punish City Plainclothesman W. F. Sutherland for allegedly torturing a prisoner yesterday was postponed until June by United States District Judge E. Marvin Underwood to give attorneys for both sides an opportunity to write briefs on the fine points of the law involved. The question is whether the offense is punishable by state or federal authorities.

United States court moves to Newnan April 1, and will not sit as a criminal court in Atlanta again until June, when the Sutherland case again will be taken up. Albert Arent, Department of Justice prosecutor from Washington, agreed to the delay that was proposed by defense counsel, and remarked that the "case is in a new field and extremely important."

"The Department of Justice's civil liberties section," Arent explained, "is trying to determine to what extent persons exercising official authority may be held criminally responsible for depriving persons of free speech, free press, freedom of assembly, freedom from brutality, and all the other civil liberties protected against state infringement by the fourteenth amendment."

Observers recalled the statement made here last week by Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, of Washington, that he was "interested in the application of federal criminal statutes in cleaning up unhealthy local situations."

Sutherland was indicted on three counts by a federal grand jury for allegedly burning and beating a 16-year-old Negro boy to obtain a confession under a state indictment for assault and battery. The case struck a snag in federal court Tuesday when defense attorneys filed a demurrer insisting the police officer's alleged offense was outside of federal jurisdiction.

FINAL RITES HELD FOR SLAIN SHERIFF

Defeated Fellow Officials Are Pallbearers.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. DAHLONEGA, Ga., March 26.—Six Lumpkin county officials, who last week went down in defeat with him at the polls, yesterday bore the body of the slain Sheriff Jack Gillespie to a grave in rural Wahoo church cemetery, near his birthplace.

Rites were held at the county jail, attended by approximately 800 persons. Sheriff Gillespie's casket, flag-draped in honor of his World War service, later was carried to Wahoo.

Pallbearers were County Commissioners John H. Moore, L. J. Justus and R. C. Meaders, County School Superintendent C. S. Moore, Tax Commissioner W. Y. Grindle and Ordinary J. B. Townsend.

Sheriff Gillespie died in a Gainesville hospital of stab wounds received when he attempted to quiet an election night crowd near the jail.

WOMEN VOTERS HIT COMMITTEE ACTION

Early Primary Violates Democracy and Voters' Mandate, They Say.

The Atlanta League of Women Voters, which had waged a county-wide drive for a late primary, issued the following statement in connection with the June 5 date:

"The Democratic executive committee, in setting an early primary, has violated Democratic principles, the mandate of the voters, and its own honor."

"But before blaming the members of the committee more than ourselves, we should analyze the committee. We shall see that we, voters, have elected to that committee largely officeholders, county employees or their close friends and relatives, the majority of whom are more concerned with the wishes of the candidates than those of the people."

"The committee should be made up of citizens who are ready and willing to act in the interest of the voters and not for special political groups. Citizens of Fulton county can have better government when they overcome their defeatist attitude and get out and vote."

Speaking in behalf of a late primary, Hughes Spalding, chairman of a special subcommittee, said:

"Don't be misled by a fallacious argument. June 5 is spring, and it is spring until June 22."

"If the voices you hear here today calling for a June 5 primary are more important than the people's expressed wish, you should set June 5 as the date for the primary. There is no justice or right in setting aside the wishes of the people."

Following action on the date, committee members turned over to the rules and finance committees the task of setting the entrance fees and arranging for the nomination of persons to fill posts held by the following officials:

County Commissioners: Glover Hailey and J. A. Ragsdale; Tax Collector: Guy Moore; Tax Collector: Earl Suttles; Ordinary: Thomas H. Jeffries; County Treasurer: Mabel Abbott MacNeill; Clerk of Superior Court: J. W. Simmons; Sheriff: J. C. Aldredge; Robert Carpenter, judge of civil court; Jesse M. Wood, judge of criminal court; Bond Almond, solicitor of Fulton criminal court; Jere Wells, superintendent of schools; C. D. R. Robert, county surveyor, and Coroner Paul Donehoo.

James B. Garmen, 23-year-old Rockmart (Ga.) youth, just could not stand the heat.

So this morning he will go back to Fulton county's Bellwood camp to begin serving a three-to-five-year sentence for auto larceny. It all happened like this, according to his testimony in Fulton superior court yesterday.

Garmen was released from Bellwood Monday morning where he had been serving a six-month sentence for larceny from person. Six blocks away from the camp he stopped at a liquor store and bought a pint of whiskey. After taking a few drinks he started to town to catch a bus for Rockmart.

But he never got to the bus station. Instead he wandered over to the Washington street viaduct where he stole the auto of F. E. Reeser, of Louisville, Ky. Then his trouble started anew. Near the state capitol he hit another car and State Patrolman J. G. Kelley arrested him.

Yesterday morning the grand jury indicted him for larceny of the auto. He immediately went before Judge Paul S. Etheridge, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to serve from three to five years.

New U. S. Torpedo Boat Flashes Over Water at Dazzling Speed

Craft May Excel Any European Models, Navy Hints.

NEW ORLEANS, March 26.—(P)—The PT-6, Uncle Sam's newest-type torpedo boat, designed for offshore defense work, thundered across Lake Pontchartrain here today at 46 miles an hour in its first speed test, and then was prepared to head for the Gulf of Mexico for three days of gruelling trials at sea.

Naval experts sent here from Washington to observe the heavily-powered 81-foot experimental craft called the first performance "satisfactory," and hinted it might be better than anything used by European powers.

It was explained the new motors were not yet broken in, and no attempt was made to reach the maximum speed of about 60 miles an hour.

Fleet Challenger.

The PT-6 was the first boat launched under the $5,000,000 building program requested by President Roosevelt and authorized by congress last year to perfect a type of speedy, inexpensive and strongly-armed craft capable of challenging an invading fleet by the use of torpedoes launched at high speed.

Captain A. Loring Swayze, who designed the 110-foot submarine chasers built by the navy during the World War; Lieutenant Commander W. D. Leggett, of the naval board of inspection and survey, and Commander Robert P. Carney headed the group of eight naval design experts who rode the pounding craft across the choppy waters.

Carney later hinted the powerboat might be superior to similar craft already in use by European powers.

"Their boats have been proved satisfactory after all tests with and without fighting equipment," he said, "but I'll venture that this boat is every bit as good if not better than theirs."

In France and Great Britain, similar craft have been dubbed "suicide boats" because of their dangerous task.

The boat carries accommodations for a crew of 10, has a cruising range of 2,000 miles, is powered by three 1,250-horsepower Packard motors, is equipped with torpedo tubes, depth charges and machine guns, and cost approximately $218,000.

If it is accepted, seven others will be built by the Higgins Industries, local ship builders, along the same design.

FARM YOUTH TO GET CALLAWAY POULTRY

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LAGRANGE, Ga., March 26.—Two hundred twenty White Rock chickens will be distributed Thursday among Troup county's 4-H Club boys and girls, Joe K. Hawkins, county agent, said today. The two-year-old chickens, products of the Cason J. Callaway farm at Blue Springs, in Harris county, will be given, 10 each to 22 boys and girls of the county who have previously shown an interest in poultry.

The chickens are a gift from Mr. Callaway, who is giving a similar lot to Harris county 4-H Club boys and girls with a view to stimulating interest in poultry as part of the broad diversified farming program now under way throughout this section of the south.

ROLL CALL TOTAL MOUNTS TO 12,000

Red Cross Response Is Slightly Ahead of Last Year.

Red Cross roll call headquarters announced yesterday that a total of approximately 12,000 members had been obtained. This number is slightly ahead of the returns made over the same period last year.

The Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills added 500 members yesterday. Leaders in various groups to date are: Large business division, William C. Harris; office building division, First National Bank, and residential division, Candler Park and North Edgewood.

In the Fulton county section, with Matt Perkins as chairman of the Buckhead area, still is leading all county divisions. In the DeKalb county section, Avondale Estates, is leading, with Mrs. E. D. Worsham as chairman. The booth division, under Mrs. Chase Van Valkenburg, is leading the entire DeKalb county roll call.

Mrs. Preston Arkwright, head of the special membership division, is still in advance of all divisions of the roll call in amount of money contributed.

POLITICS IN GEORGIA, GREECE HELD ALIKE

JEFFERSON, Ga., March 26.—(P)—Only the Greeks surpass Georgians in love of politics, Atlanta General Ellis Arnall told the Rotary Club today.

Relating that in some of that country's old city-states a new governor was chosen each day, he said such an arrangement must have been delightful for perpetually ambitious gubernatorial candidates.

"It must have been a source of great delight to the habitual critics to have the happy privilege of 'throwing' a new governor to 'the lions' each day," Arnall observed.

COMMUNITY FUND GROUP WILL MEET HERE ON FRIDAY

80 Southern Organizations Will Send Representatives to Two-Day Session of Conference.

The first annual meeting of the newly formed Southern Conference of Community Chests and Councils, with membership composed of approximately 80 organizations east of the Mississippi and south of the Mason-Dixon Line, will be held at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel Friday and Saturday.

Atlanta's interested in social work, regardless of whether they are actively identified with the field or not, have been extended an invitation to attend sessions, according to Tom Carroll, of Charlotte, N. C., general conference chairman.

Of interest to Atlantans will be a luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock Saturday with Lambdin Kay, president of the Atlanta Social Planning Council, presiding.

Assisting Mr. Kay in a summary of round table discussions will be Miss Rhoda Kaufman, planning council executive secretary.

Miss Mary Ansley Miller, executive head of the Atlanta Social Service Index, will also head a general session on social service exchanges at 10:45 o'clock Saturday.

The conference which will open at 10 o'clock Friday morning also will be featured by addresses by Allen T. Burns, executive vice president, and Bradley Buell, field director, of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., national organization with New York headquarters.

BERLIN, March 26.—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels today banned the playing or singing of the national anthem, "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and the Nazi battle hymns, including the newest, "We Are Sailing Against England," in restaurants, cafes and amusement centers except when special permission is given.

The measure was taken under the decree for the protection of national symbols and songs.

BOSTON COUNCIL VOTE IS FOUND EXCESSIVE

BOSTON, March 26.—(AP)—The business before the 20-man city council was confirmation of several coal weathers. On the first ballot there were 22 votes, with two abstaining. Acting Chairman Michael J. Ward observed there was something amiss.

On the second try there were 21 ballots, and Councilor Ward called for a rising vote. The weathers were confirmed, 18 to 0.

New Jersey Leans Republican, Democrats Having Lost Much

Majority in Important State Still Approve Roosevelt at This Point But Large Proportion Would Desert Him If He Sought Third Term.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
PRINCETON, N. J., March 26.—The announcement that Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, son of the famous inventor, will seek the Democratic nomination for Governor of New Jersey comes at a time when the Democrats may need the strongest and most prominent candidates they can find to hold the states in line. With 16 electoral votes New Jersey is one of the top-rank states in importance for the 1940 campaign.

A study, conducted by the Institute, put the following issue to a cross-section of voters in New Jersey:

"Which party would you like to see win the presidential election this year?"

Want Democrats to Win 47%
Want Republicans to Win 53%

President Roosevelt's personal popularity in New Jersey continues strong, the survey shows, with 60 per cent approving him as president at this point in his second term. But a large proportion of these voters say they would desert him if he ran for a third term.

MAURETANIA ENDS TRANSIT OF CANAL

Liner, Apparently Destined for Australian Troopship, Reaches Pacific.

BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 26.—(AP)—Heading for a secret mission across the Pacific, Britain's fifth largest liner, the 35,739-ton Mauretania, nosed slowly through the Panama Canal today after an uneventful five-day dash down the Atlantic from New York.

The gray camouflaged liner, apparently destined for service as a troop transport between Australia and the Near East, entered the Atlantic end of the canal at 8:45 o'clock this morning, Atlanta time, and approached Balboa on the Pacific side at sundown. She will take on fuel here before continuing her furtive sea journey.

Overhead a squadron of United States army pursuit planes circled briefly before the giant vessel entered the canal with three pilots aboard.

This is the Blue Bonnet, a resort of Phenix City, where the troops from Fort Benning and women from everywhere gather. The army authorities, combined with the officials of the United States Public Health Service, have put the finger on places like the Blue Bonnet and the order to black out has been issued, as the drive to clean up vice goes forward.

PHENIX CITY SHAKEN BY DRIVE ON HER VICE

Phenix City is cheap and tawdry, frank and brazen with its vice.

The soldier, from Fort Benning, the country boy in from the farm, the mill hand from the big factories along the river may want to drink a little and gamble a little, but that's not his main idea on his night out. That's what the girls were there for. They posed as waitresses, and as such were immune to any vagrancy charge if anybody wanted to prefer one, which nobody ever did.

Soldier Bait.

They didn't work. They merely waited, until some lonely soldier came along wanting somebody to drink with him a little, to laugh with him and dance with him, and then to go out with him to the outlying tourist camp, the upstairs room over the near-by store, the convenient spot close by.

That's the way it was for years, and that's the way it seemed destined to go on for ever, unless divine power itself grew weary of forbearance and sent upon the bold and brazen little town the wrath that crushed Sodom and Gomorrah.

The sheriff's order, though, was enough for the moment.

It may not last, but the men who run the joints are taking it seriously tonight. They are lying low. Gambling rooms may be hidden and kept quiet. Illegal liquor, if licenses are not restored, may be concealed.

But you can't hide the girls.

Citizenry Puzzled.

If the law weakens, turns its head, they will creep back, and soon Phenix will rise as its namesake bird, from the moral ashes in which it now lies to flamboyant vice greater than before.

If the law is firm, the town is gone and the highways will be thick with the wandering maidens, seeking less restricted fields.

The outlaw citizenry of Phenix City can't figure it out. They think they are being made the victims of a crime and vice drive. That's true, but it is not the main point. If crime were the only evil, Phenix City could have gone on with its fighting, its occasional slayings, its gambling, and its vice, undisturbed, as it has done for years.

It suffers now because it is a well-spring of disease. The drive is not one of moral alone. It is primarily a health crusade.

The story of its beginning goes back to fall, when the soldiers began massing at Benning, near here, for the winter drills preceding the great spring maneuvers.

Strange Restlessness.

As the great mobilization started, public health doctors in the post towns noticed a strange restlessness among the patients under their care. They began to detect the beginning of a strange migration of their soiled pigeons, a strong desire to be free of clinic so that they might "go south."

They reported this to Washington and public health authorities there began to watch.

Soon after, army doctors, particularly those in charge of the incoming soldiers, began to notice a strange disturbing thing.

The incidence of venereal disease among the soldiers was rising. Hospitals began to fill with sufferers. All told the same story—Phenix City, Columbus.

The charts in the Benning clinic began to fill up with sick soldiers. Reports like these were taken verbatim from army records:

"Picked up girl at Beechie Howards." "Picked up girl at Dixie Inn." "Picked up girl at Alabama Sand House." "Picked up girl at Blue Bonnet." "Picked up girl at Big Apple." "On corner in downtown Columbus, carried to house in Columbus by taxi driver."

The army called for the help of the United States Public Health Service. They sent a man to investigate. The American Social Hygiene Association sent an investigator.

They had to work only a few days. The gist of their report was simply this: "Vice is wide open both in Phenix City and Columbus. No effort at control is being made."

General in Action.
Major General Asa G. Singleton, commandant at Fort Benning read these reports. He whistled. He snorted. He blew through his mustache and he went into action.

He wasn't going to have his soldiers incapacitated for service if there was any way to stop it and he thought there was.

He went to the officials of Columbus and Phenix City. There was talk of making the towns "out of bounds" to soldiers.

This frightened the wits out of Columbus. For Benning's soldiers had $1,000,000 a month there. Action was immediate. Phenix City's official family was less perturbed. Only Phenix City's honky-tonks profit from the soldiers' trade.

The general went to Judge C. F. McLaughlin, of superior court. He told the judge the facts. The judge, in a ringing charge to the Muscogee county grand jury, urged action. The general himself appeared before the grand jury. Every law enforcement officers in Muscogee county went before the grand jury.

They came out, and under Chief Homer Cornett, of city police, and J. W. Satterfield, of county police, the drive was on.

Staid old Columbus, which had always looked down its nose at its tough neighbor across the river, finding itself tarred with the same brush, didn't like it a bit.

Her problem was a little different from that of Phenix City. There was a different technique among the women. In Columbus, they walked the streets, taking their chance companions home to cheap hotels and rooming houses. Or they dwelt in houses, to which taxi drivers with a working agreement with the management, brought trade at $1 a head.

The police didn't have far to go for a start. There was a place right across the street from the courthouse. There was another upstairs next door to the chief's office.

Chief Surprised.

"There had been drives before," said Chief Cornett, 34 years on the force, "just to minimize things a little. I never thought they'd actually want it all stamped out."

Despite his surprise at the task laid out for him, he worked hard, though. Within a few days county and city police had hauled in 80.

Judge McLaughlin, on the bench, dealt out justice with mercy. All pleaded guilty. All were placed on probation, which gave them a chance to get out of town, with the warning that if they were caught again, they'd be sent to the state farm. Three of them were, and the judge was as good as his word.

The health authorities, who actually had started the crusade, in a way, got in their work as those arrested were brought in. Each was examined. Trial of those found infected was delayed until they were passed as non-infectious, by Dr. James Thrash, city-county physician.

They Hit Trail.

Others, uncaught but frightened, headed back from whence they came.

"I reckon I hauled a hundred of them to the county line," said one taxi driver. "They'd get out of the car and sit down beside the highway, all dressed up, trying to flag a ride."

The drive worked. The police still keep a wary eye on those they suspect. Columbus, according to Judge McLaughlin, is about as clean as a town can be made, now.

The army felt the effect almost immediately. The incidence of disease began to decrease noticeably.

But Phenix City, still unregenerate, still laughing out of the corner of its mouth, made no move. Those from Columbus who sought its shelter instead of leaving the Benning area altogether, were made welcome. They went to work as "waitresses" in the honky-tonks and dives.

On Lighthearted Way.
Dr. Robert E. Rock, of the Alabama State Health Service, came hopefully into Phenix, ready to serve as Dr. Thrash was serving in Columbus—rendering those arrested and found diseased, non-infectious.

But nobody was arrested, much. Just a pitiful handful.

So he had to take another tack. He went to all the joints and ordered all who handled food or drinks, barmen, "waitresses" and all, to report for examination. Those found infected he treated.

But Phenix City went on its merry way, loud and lusty and lawless as ever.

Until the alcoholic beverage board cracked down, and Sheriff Burch followed it last night with his order that the women would have to go.

That last wasn't much of a gesture to make, you might say, compared to the way in which Columbus cleaned house.

But for Phenix City, unaccustomed to any sort of interference from the law, it was a shocking blow.

It may not mean anything. And it may not last. But the jook-jointmen are afraid that it will. And if it does, it means curtains for them.

Even last night it was felt, through liquor still flowed freely, (license suspensions go into effect April 1), and the girls were not then banned.

Only at Beechie Howards', which has always enjoyed a strange immunity in Phenix City, was there much merry-making and wassail. Elsewhere there was

BOLIVIAN REBELS QUICKLY QUELLED

Loyal General Takes Two Machine Guns and Stops Attack.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, March 26.—(P)—Bolivia tonight lay under a state of siege proclaimed by provisional President Carlos Quintanilla, with one accused leader of rebellion defying arrest and an undetermined number of dissident soldiers with tanks reported at large, after two machine guns and the army chief of staff had blocked an early morning march on the government palace.

General Antenor Ichazo, the chief of staff, quelled the palace march of a rebellious regiment of fusiliers and some cavalry units. Approached before dawn with an offer to take over the rebellion himself, Ichazo rapped out a flat "No," gathered together a handful of loyal soldiers and two machine guns and confronted the rebels as they converged on the palace.

Most of them were shepherd back to barracks, under arrest, while thousands of government supporters, summoned by radio, milled noisily in the central plaza of La Paz, shouting "vivas" for the president.

No shots were reported fired.

TWO-TONE EGGS.

GRIFFIN, Ga., March 26.—J. C. Reeves, of Griffin, has a hen that lays "two-tone" eggs. For the second time in recent weeks, Reeves said today, the hen has laid an egg that was yellow on each end with a white ring or band through the center of the shell. Both eggs have had circles around one end.

Here is a scene in a resort in Phenix City which has started a drive at the instance of the state authorities, to protect the soldiers of the United States army which is concentrating 20,000 men at Fort Benning, preparatory to spring army maneuvers. The drive is particularly against resorts the army calls a danger to the health of the soldiers. Public Health Service reports have called attention to this problem, it was pointed out.

Outsiders Befoul Phenix City, Say Its Embarrassed Citizens

Residents Honest, Hard-Working People, Priest Declares.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

PHENIX CITY, Ala., March 26. Phenix City's unsavory reputation as a wide-open town is a source of great distress to the good and law-abiding people who make up the majority of its 16,000 population. There are many spokesmen for this better element, among them Enoch Mathews, executive director of the Phenix City Housing Authority, who told eloquently of the struggle his town is making to live down the name that the vicious minority in its midst has caused it to bear.

"The people of Phenix City, the real residents here, don't patronize these places, and they don't run them. They work by day and go to bed at night and go to church on Sunday and live clean and honest lives.

"City Is Broke."
"But this city is handicapped. It is broke, in the hands of the receiver, in fact. It has no money to properly police itself.

"It is making a fight and a good one. It has a new courthouse and post office, built with government funds. Its school system is growing.

"It has just built an $18,000 women's club. One housing project costing three-quarters of a million dollars is already under construction and another costing the same will be under construction the first of June.

"It is going ahead as rapidly as any town in the country. The young folks are beginning to take an interest, beginning to try to do something about it. It has a Junior Chamber of Commerce and a Lions Club, and all are active.

"It is a poor town. There is no industry in it. Eighty-five per cent of its people work in Columbus, most of them in textile mills, nearly all of them in industry, for wages.

"It's fighting ahead and it deserves a lot of credit. There's plenty of bad in it if you look for it. But there's plenty of good in every town."

Equally as staunch a defender of Phenix City's quiet thousands is the priest, Father James Salway, pastor of St. Patrick's church. "Its people are poor, but they are good people. They worship God and they go their own way, trying to make their living, trying to help those in need about them."

"They do not run the honky-tonks. They do not patronize them. They only tolerate them because it cannot yet be helped. But some day it will. Some day Phenix City will throw them off. It is the outsiders who give Phenix City a bad name."

INDUSTRY EMPLOYS 1,000,000 OVER '39

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(P) One million more workers were employed in non-agricultural industries last month than in February, 1939, the Labor Department reported today, despite a decline of 50,000 from mid-January to mid-February.

Secretary Perkins attributed the drop largely to curtailed activity in stores, wholesale houses and public construction, and a fractional decline in factory employment.

WORST HELD PAST IN COLUMBUS AREA

Vice Conditions Under Control, Health Officer Says on Visit Here.

Police and health officials are making every effort to combat the problem created by the concentration of soldiers at Fort Benning, Dr. J. A. Thrash, Columbus health officer, declared yesterday in Atlanta.

At the state capitol to confer with Dr. E. R. Watson, associate director of the maternal and child health division, Dr. Thrash said the police phase of the present situation is more important than the health phase.

Universal Problem.
"The universal problem with any mass movement of soldiers is that of camp followers or prostitutes," he said. "We are making every effort to control prostitution and I think I can say that we now have it under control. Our worst conditions existed about a month ago."

At first he refused to discuss the subject, insisting that the problem was "purely local" and did not concern the state. When pressed, however, he revealed some of the steps being taken to curb the menace.

Are Fingerprinted.
"The police department arrests all known prostitutes, and then they are fingerprinted and photographed," he said. "They are arrested on charges of vagrancy. They are then quarantined by the health department for the necessary examination and treatment."

"Those found to be infected are treated until they are judged non-infectious. They are released and the charge of vagrancy is prosecuted in the superior court. Some prostitutes have been given suspended sentences the first time, but those arrested the second time get 12-month sentences at the state farm."

Dr. Thrash said that in his judgment most of the prostitutes had left Columbus. He explained that Columbus had been confronted with the problem for 20 years and that it was no more serious now than it had been in the past.

"Since the dawn of history we have had prostitutes following soldiers," he said. "Hannibal had them, and Napoleon had them."

Dr. Thrash pointed out that the people of the Columbus area are behind the movement to drive the camp followers out of the section. He declared his trip to Atlanta in no way concerned the Fort Benning situation. He said his business was to confer with health officials concerning maternal and child hygiene.

The Anti-Lynching Bill

That politically inspired bill, the anti-lynching measure, is again scheduled for disposal by the United States senate. Once again it is probable that it will be the signal for a filibuster, as opponents of the measure resort to every possible means to block its passage.

The bill is, on its face, undesirable. It provides what might well develop into an incentive for the provocation of mob outrage and violence, perhaps more drastically than any other legislative proposal, the rights of the states to police their own internal affairs.

It is so palpably designed primarily as a vote-catcher for office holders of northern constituencies which include heavy blocks of Negro votes, that it cannot be supported on grounds of need without the most barefaced ignoring of its import and probable effect. Yet even the Negroes whose votes it is designed to capture have been deceived by its publicized purpose. The great mass of support is based upon this misleading publicity, rather than upon the actual provisions of the bill itself and the probable result if its enforcement is ever attempted.

It must be confessed, however, that the bill today stands a better chance of passage than ever before. And it is with shame the south must confess it is from the south has come the material to support the proponents of this dangerous bill.

The records of lynching, carefully kept by the famous Negro institution, Tuskegee Institute, of Alabama, reveal that the crime of lynching has almost disappeared under the force of public disgust. In 1939 there were but three lynchings in the entire country and there is every reason to believe that, if this bill is not passed, this mob blot upon the fair fame of the nation will have been eradicated.

Yet, from Georgia and from Fulton county there has come, in recent weeks, the news of outrages which themselves are neither more nor less than the criminal activities of the lyncher spirit.

The fatal flogging of Ike Gaston, that East Point barber, was nothing more nor less than a lynching. Every instance of flogging, now being disclosed before the grand jury, is one more instance of lynch law in practice. Every incident in which secret bands of men seek to take into their own hands the enforcement of law, either by "warning," by intimidation or by physical duress, is an outbreak of the same mob motivation that is behind every case of lynching.

It is but further fuel for the flames of the anti-lynch law advocates when sworn officers of the law condone flogging activities or fail to exert every effort to apprehend the guilty criminals.

It is the duty of every citizen to aid in every way possible in the enforcement of the law. It is a failure of that duty when any citizen attempts to defend or apologize for such outrages as the South Fulton floggings, or to excuse those responsible for conditions which make them possible.

And every such outrage, every such apology for it, but plays into the hands of the anti-lynch law advocates who would legislate into the national statutes an insult to the south and a piece of deceptive, vote-catching pap for the voters of Harlem.

Army Turns Caterer

One of the army's strong points, in the last few years, has been the cooking and the menu. There never was a press agent any more proud of getting publicity than a lieutenant colonel in G-2 who got a wire story out on the chow the boys were eating in his corps area. It was one of the few things that would get a lieutenant colonel from under the authority of the wings on his shoulders and make him go home and tell his wife about what a great guy he is.

Now the boys are preparing for new fields to conquer. And it is getting things quite in a dither down Savannah way, where the cooking staff (remember the old K. P.?) is learning the finer arts of catering, no less, in a hotel. The Eighth Infantry, which already has an enviable reputation among reserve officers for its mess, will leave no stone unturned in providing for the comfort and the cuisine of members of congress, War Department big shots and newspapermen who will be guests at the spring maneuvers.

After the war is over, the benefits will redound to the men of the regiment, who may except crepe suzettes, breast of pheasant, humming birds' tongues and cafe royale at any hour. Maybe it's all Roosevelt propaganda to get us into a European or Asiatic war. Or are the Republicans sleeping again?

Modern Babel.

According to the story told in the Old Testament, man, in his pride and arrogance, sought to build, at Babel, a tower high enough to reach the sky. God, angered, foiled the workers by creating among them a confusion of tongues. Thus began the variety of languages of mankind and diversity of speech has caused confusion, misunderstanding, jealous rivalry and war ever since.

Last Sunday a new confusion of tongues disrupted the little affairs of man, for a time. It was the electric energy from a great disturbance, a "spot" on the sun.

Through the centuries man has learned, partially, how to overcome the diversity of languages. He has, likewise, learned how to communicate, at astonishing speed, with his fellows around the globe. The lines of the telephone and telegraph, the cable beneath the oceans and the waves which carry the marvel of radio, permit modern man to talk with another on the far side of the world. And, as communication improves there is the hope that, some day, understanding will improve.

But, as though to show the puniness of man's achievements, nature casually creates a sun spot and, for hours, man's lines of communication are ruined. It is as though they had never been.

The world, and the little men who walk their momentary lives upon its surface, may think what happens upon this tiny planet is important. But, if there is to be real effort to acquire the perspective of truth, man must lift his eyes to the heavens, must turn his imagination to the universe and toward the infinite.

On Sunday there was a tornado on the sun. Comparatively a little thing, but it sent waves of electric energy out into space and those waves which were magnetically drawn toward the earth played casual havoc with proud accomplishments of man. How little more it would take to end, for all time, this earthly speck within creation and destroy, even from the memory of the gods, not only the puny works of man but man himself.

How'll You Have 'Em?

Waking early this week after dreams of Easter eggs—red eggs and yellow eggs, blue eggs and brown eggs, chocolate eggs and candy eggs, and just plain eggs—a little known fact struck the eyes of readers of The Constitution.

It is one of those fascinating little items that creates wonder about college educations and makes us quit wondering where all the tax money goes. The information, which is pinned squarely on the shoulders of Nutrition Specialist Christine Carlson, of Ohio State University, is to the effect that those who don't like scrambled Easter eggs have the choice of 742,366 other "known" ways of serving them.

Without straining a point, such a statement may well be doubted, but the advantage is all on the side of the lady making the statement.

Maybe she included some of these restaurant and drug store eggs.

Among other things, the Nazi press excoiates the British cousin as a "poisoner of wells." Come, come, it was probably only something that Summer ate.

The finding of the bones of an unheard-of whale has science agog. Are the boys quite sure they haven't turned up the remains of a 1905 straight-front corset?

They begin to think Il Duce is standing on a treadmill. In months of marching off to the wars, he hasn't got away from home plate.

If, as now seems possible, things don't turn out as gloriously as anticipated, the Japanese flag can also represent a setting sun.

A famed publicist points out that the average American is still not tax-conscious. Moreover, if he shows signs of coming to he is struck with another.

Americans compose and copyright 800 songs a week. It is estimated that only 725 of them rhyme "tender" with "surrender."

ON KEEPING OUT OF PEACE

(From the Chicago Daily News.)

We hope it is true that the United States had nothing to do with the Russo-Finnish peace. We hope that neither Mr. Steinhardt, our ambassador to Moscow, nor Mr. Welles, our roving emissary, had anything to do with it, and that Mr. Hull did not, nor Mr. Roosevelt.

There have been official denials, certainly. Mr. Steinhardt, we are told, was merely "seeking information." Mr. Welles, too, is merely "seeking information." It is good to seek information. But long experience has left us open-minded in the matter of official denials.

Peace is desirable, but not the peace that cripples and enslaves, a tyrant's peace. Americans have never believed in that kind of peace. And if, as is to be feared, the Finnish peace is that kind of peace, they will not wish to have had any part in it.

Our record in mixing in other people's peace negotiations is not a happy one. Continually we disclaim any thought of taking part in foreign quarrels. Yet continually, when it comes to the peacemaking, we are prone to rush in. Peace negotiations are of the very essence of politics. We cannot, by staying out of war but getting into peace, claim to be consistent. The peacemaker is responsible, morally, not only for the peace but for what grows out of the peace.

We tried to make peace for Europe in 1919. Our intentions were excellent. But what of the results? Just before Munich, we tried again to make peace. Mr. Roosevelt urged the disputants to negotiate. They did—and that was the end of Czecho-Slovakia. Mr. Roosevelt, he it said, has never sought to take credit for what was achieved at Munich.

But Mr. Welles' mission still puzzles us. Why was he sent abroad? Just what are these important consultations in Rome, Berlin, London, Paris? Why has the impression got around, following Mr. Welles' confidential talks, that Mr. Roosevelt is trying to make up his mind whether or not to attempt to mediate an armistice and a peace settlement in Europe? If it is true that Hitler, with the help of Mussolini and others, is preparing a big new peace offensive, right on the heels of the Finnish peace and of Mr. Welles' mission, are we going to be involved?

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

FARLEY HAS THREE REASONS WASHINGTON, March 26. There were at least three reasons for James A. Farley's Massachusetts announcement that his name would be presented to the Democratic national committee, come hell or high water. First was his increasingly strained relationship with the President, reported here a fortnight ago. Second was the rapid progress of the third-term movement, which forced him to act promptly if he wished to act at all. And third was the accidental raising of the religious issue against him, which reacted strongly in his favor in Massachusetts and elsewhere.

Suggestions from New Deal quarters that Farley must now relinquish the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee are his announcement's most immediate results. The President will be urged by the third-termers to tell Farley he cannot be both candidate and chairman. The President's decision will probably hang on whether he wishes the break between him and his old friend to become even more open than it now is.

Longer-term results are harder to foresee. They may be said to fall into two categories—possible results if the President decides to run, and possible results if he decides to name candidates of his own choosing.

FARLEY'S RIGHTS If the President decides to run, Farley has found an effective way of opposing the third term without an open fight. He has committed himself, without qualification, to allowing his name to be presented to the convention. This will signify his disapproval of the third-term candidacy. Farley cannot hope to make much of a showing against the President in a convention roll call, but mere presentation of his name, along with Vice President John N. Garner's, will be a damaging public demonstration of Democratic disunion. And Farley can answer charges of fomenting disunion by saying he had to carry through on a commitment he had every right to make.

This is the real heart of Farley's position. Last August, before going abroad, he received assurances that the President did not want a third term. He was told that such developments abroad produced a national emergency, the President would issue a statement taking himself out of the 1940 picture. He was even informed of the intended timing and probable contents of the statement. These assurances, as Farley saw it, gave him the right to assume that the field was open for him.

A few months later, however, the third-term movement began to cross and hamper him sorely, taking many delegates who would otherwise have been his. The New Deal third-termers argue that Farley has no reason to complain, since the war constitutes just the sort of national emergency which he himself had predicted. But while no presidential statement was forthcoming on the date indicated, Farley has never been told that the President has changed his mind. Thus he thinks his right to count on the President still continues. Thus he can defend his commitment to make a fight for the nomination, as wholly consistent with due consideration for his chief's wishes. Such is the first category of possible rights.

THEY WILL, THEY WON'T If the President decides not to run, on the other hand, Farley has found a means of partly staunching the political hemorrhage that was daily weakening him. As more and more delegates were gathered into the third-term bag, whether for use by the President or someone else, Farley was continually losing strength. Now, as an avowed candidate, he can fight to keep his strength, and perhaps retain enough of it to command second place on the party ticket.

This has been, all along, the real object of Farley's ambition. He wants to be named for the vice presidency with Cordell Hull as the presidential candidate. Rather convincing rumors are current that the secretary of state will not accept a presidential nomination. Farley does not believe them. He does believe, however, that the President would rather have Attorney General Robert H. Jackson as Hull's running mate, and here he thinks he is justified in asserting his claims against the President's wishes.

It remains to be seen whether he can make his claims good. Despite the declaration of State Chairman Burke that the Massachusetts delegates will be for the President first, many of them are said to be for Farley first. A similar situation is reported from New York. At any rate, if the President does not run, Farley will presumably have a large number of delegations whose second choice he is. No one can tell if these delegations will be enough to enable Farley to resist the President.

The New Dealers equally confidently assert they won't. Farley's friends confidently assert they will. The outcome will depend on the party politicians, who now seem, it must be admitted, to be looking to the President for leadership.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

American Creed.

In the April issue of The Sojourner, official bulletin of the National Sojourners, Masonic army organization, is a most interesting article on the Creed of America, how it was derived and the author thereof.

The officially adopted American Creed was the result of discussion, which took place all over America in 1916-17, as to what really constituted "the political faith of America." A contest, open to all Americans for the best summary of this national faith, was inaugurated after the press of the country took up the discussion.

The city of Baltimore, as the birthplace of "The Star-Spangled Banner," offered a prize of $1,000 and a group of distinguished men was named a committee on award.

The winner of the contest was William Tyler Page, of Friendship Heights, Md. He was a descendant of President Tyler and also of Carter Braxton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

The Creed which Mr. Page compiled is a collection of historic phrases, eternally ingrained in the American faith.

How It Reads
For the sake of those who may not be entirely familiar with The Creed, it reads as follows:
I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect Union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its Flag; and to defend it against all enemies."

Doctrinal Origins.
In The Congressional Record for April 13, 1918, may be found a full explanation of the acceptance of this Creed, together with the story of its writing, its author, and the doctrinal origins from which it was derived. That explanation of origins is almost a skeletonized lesson in the fundamentals of real Americanism.

"The United States of America"—Preamble Constitution of the United States.
"A government of the people, by the people, for the people"—Preamble Constitution of the United States; Daniel Webster's speech in the Senate, January 26, 1830; Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg speech.

"Whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed"—Thomas Jefferson, in Declaration of Independence.
"A democracy in a republic"—James Madison, in The Federalist, No. 10; Article X of the Amendment to Constitution.

"A sovereign Nation of many sovereign States"—E. pluribus unum, a great seal of the United States; Article IV of the Constitution.

"A perfect Union"—Preamble to the Constitution.
"One and inseparable"—Webster's speech in the Senate, January 26, 1830.

"Established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes"—Declaration of Independence.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it"—Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country."
"To support its Constitution"—Oath of Allegiance, Section 1757, Revised Statutes of the United States.

"To obey its laws"—Washington's Farewell Address; Article I, Constitution of the United States.

"To respect its Flag"—National Anthem, The Star-Spangled Banner; Army and Navy Regulations; War Department circular on Flag Etiquette, April 14, 1917.

"And to defend it against all enemies"—Oath of Allegiance, Section 1757, Revised Statutes of the United States.

Such a compilation is worth memorizing and studying. If it was better known and more frequently remembered, the ideal of real democracy in America would be far nearer to realization than it is today.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Saturday, March 27, 1915:
"Honolulu, March 26.—The American submarine F-6, lost since yesterday morning off Honolulu harbor, was located late today. Heroic efforts were being made tonight to raise the stricken craft, but it was regarded as doubtful whether any of her crew of twenty-one men remained alive."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Thursday, March 27, 1890:
"Mr. T. E. Whittle, of Keith, Ga., has discovered a silver mine on his place."

Green Replies

By WILLIAM GREEN.

President, American Federation of Labor.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has asked the privilege of replying here to certain accusations against the AFL made by Westbrook Pegler, whose column usually occupies this space. The Constitution is glad to publish Mr. Green's reply. This, then, is the second of a series of articles by Mr. Green. Mr. Pegler, who is on a vacation, will resume his regular column, "Fair Enough," about April 1.

Ask The Members When Mr. Pegler charges unions are coercive, my reply to him is—ask the carpenter, ask the bricklayer, ask the plumber, ask the railroad worker, ask the printer in the composing room of your own newspaper and find out whether they are members of their union by choice or by compulsion.

Now as to union dues. These dues are fixed by the members of the union. The money is necessary to run the union. Vast amounts are paid out by unions each year for strike benefits. In 1938 unions affiliated with the AFL paid their members a total of $25,586,288.58 in health, sickness, old age, disability and miscellaneous benefits. These are worthy and necessary activities.

When Mr. Pegler implies that union dues are exacted from workers to support a lot of labor leaders in idleness and luxury, he is repeating the same old charge that enemies of labor have made from time immemorial. It is untrue and the members of organized labor know it to be untrue. Let me assure Mr. Pegler that the members of organized labor are not pusillanimous puppets but upstanding independent Americans. They know their union dues are a small investment in self-protection and security. In my experience in organized labor I have found that any official so untrue to his trust as to misapply union funds is promptly and effectively punished. I have found far fewer cases of this kind in labor unions than in any other kind of organization in the nation.

The Charge Of Racketeering There is just as much racketeering truth to the charge that the American Federation of Labor is a racketeering organization preying upon the workers of the country as there is to Adolf Hitler's charge that democracy is a device by which racketeering politicians prey upon the people.

Would it be fair to condemn American democracy because of a Teapot Dome scandal and the disclosure that even a cabinet officer has been corrupt?

Would you lose faith in the courts and American justice because the senior judge of the United Circuit Court of Appeals is now serving a jail term for betraying his trust?

Would you lose confidence in the Federal Reserve System and start hoarding your savings under a mattress because a number of prominent bankers have been sentenced to prison for crookedness?

Would you condemn the police system of an entire city because an individual member of the force is exposed as a bribe-taker?

Would you reject the capitalistic system and join the Communist party because certain corporation officials have run off with the stockholders' money?

Well, then, there is just as much sense in Westbrook Pegler's attacks upon the American Federation of Labor because he has found two union officials with criminal records.

The two men named by Mr. Pegler are Willie Bioff and George Scallie.

The Facts About Bioff I have never met Mr. Bioff nor spoken to him. He is an appointed representative of his union. The facts in his case are that he has been associated with the union movement only five or six years. The crime for which he was convicted in Chicago took place many years before that and had nothing to do with his subsequent union activities. He is now charged with having evaded his sentence and the case is before the courts. It is up to the officers and members of the union by which Mr. Bioff is employed to decide whether they wish to be represented by a man of his character. My personal views in the matter are well known to the officers of this particular union. However, Mr. Bioff is not responsible to me but to them. And the elected officers of the union are responsible to the members of the union. If the officers and members of the union are dissatisfied with Mr. Bioff, the union's constitution provides the means of getting rid of him. If the officers and members of the union feel that Mr. Bioff's record is a good one and that he should be retained, they have the right to stick by him. The American Federation of Labor itself cannot intervene in such cases and I will explain why in the next article.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

BACK TO THE "HOSS AND BUGGY?" In all of us, I guess, there is something of the little boy who remembers warm kitchens and the freedom of play about the house. They were protected, secure days, and so we think back with a nostalgic fondness for the "good old days."

There is a yearning to get back to the days when America was a "hoss and buggy" country, when life was simple; when the complexities of modern life and speed did not grab one's solar plexus and make it flop like a rug in a puppy's mouth.

Here of late I have been giving myself large doses of biography with special attention to Jefferson, Hamilton, Jackson and Lincoln, with emphasis on Jefferson and Lincoln. Jackson already had received that special attention.

Jeffersonian Democracy was simple in comparison with that of today. And there were reasons.

The sociologists have a phrase—"cultural lag"—meaning that technology and science have gone so fast that our social culture lagged behind.

Well, it has.

"THE GOOD OLD DAYS" In the good old days of Jefferson this was a simple country—in comparison.

We had 10,000,000 people in America.

More than 90 per cent of them were engaged in agriculture. The fortunes, and they were few, were owned by individuals. Wealth largely was in land, homes and small stores.

Jefferson wanted to keep manufacturing in Europe. He wanted America to be a land of farmers. (In his second term conditions had changed and he welcomed an increase in manufacturing.)

He didn't like cities. He said large cities had the same effect on government as sores did on the body of a sick man. He wanted this nation to be based on agriculture and the whole philosophy of its government was based on that premise.

Today this is an urban nation and the trend still is toward the cities.

Fifty millions of our people are at work in more than 300 different occupations.

A few million women are to be found, not in the home, but in industry and executive positions.

In Jefferson's time those women were at home raising large families of children.

Today we are a nation of adults.

Our once-untapped resources are exploited. Our farms are being abandoned despite huge subsidies and tremendous sums spent on rehabilitation, reforestation and soil conservation.

In Jefferson's time there was not much facility for communication. News of the Declaration of Independence didn't reach Georgia until August 10.

Today more than 3,500,000 miles of paved roads are spanning the nation, states and sections.

In 1922 the largest radio station was in a garage. Have you seen Radio City?

We can telephone around the world within the span of a few hours.

An automobile made in 1925 is a curious spectacle today. People laugh at them as they go about the streets in parades.

Airplanes, sleeper planes, are no longer novelties. It was just 1926 the airplane passenger business began to come along.

So, we've left the "hoss and buggy." I'm not so sure it is all for the good. But the point is, we can't go back to those days; and their symbol, one of slowness in travel, communication and transportation, is one the modern businessman wouldn't accept.

NOT BACKWARD—BUT FORWARD We can't go back to Jefferson's time. The big job is to take the principles of that democracy and seek to apply them to the tremendous population, the fast cars, the swift planes, the cables, the telephones, the radio, the daily newspaper, the mixed population which goes to make up the America of today.

We have more people in greater New York city than were in all the United States in Jefferson's time.

We have seen science and technology, which haven't even scratched the surface, go so fast that government and social planning can't keep up with them.

Roosevelt was not the inventor of the New Deal.

All the force which made for it had been gathering force through the years.

Roosevelt may have made mistakes but at least he grappled with the problem. He may not have solved them. Indeed, he has not. Yet he started.

It is a task to confound the best economists and planners in the nation. It is one which requires careful and dispassionate efforts to keep this principle of Democracy, made for and by 13 small, agricultural states, and apply it to a great industrial, urban nation of over one hundred millions of people.

The answer is not in going back to the "hoss and buggy" days.

For the very good reason that we can't.

If Junior Is Spoiled At Home, He Is Unspoiled By Tough Schoolmates

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

Modern children, though unable to realize it, are sitting on top of the world. And they will need far more than ordinary intelligence and character to survive their good fortune.

People who are now middle-age respected their parents. They were admonished to fear God, and they did, but they were not actually afraid. They only feared to offend Him, and in that sense they feared their parents.

Father (not Dad) was a man of dignity who might at times unbend and be jolly, but he demanded respect and his authority was absolute

ALMOST SORRY JACK

CAME BACK FROM S. A.

Editor Constitution: May I tell you that I am almost sorry Jack Spalding has come home? It seems to me that everybody read his letters from South America, and opinion was almost as enthusiastic as my own. I think he has a real wit, and what so many more mature travel writers frequently have not—a point of view; that is, he is not merely reporting, but thinking things about what he sees and hears.

In these days when newspapers are obliged to reflect so much tragedy, the "lift" in Jack's articles was a saving grace. I see his humor, his philosophy, in his local reporting, too, and there is much comment about his work. More power to him and his paper.

LOUISE DOOLY.

INADEQUATE SALARIES

"PROMISED" TEACHERS

Editor Constitution: On behalf of 800,000 school children in the state of Georgia and the 23,000 school teachers, I want to express to you my sincere appreciation for the positive attitude your paper has followed consistently in the support of an adequate educational program for the state. Your very pertinent editorials from time to time, together with those of Mr. McGill, have done much to inform the people of Georgia of the very grave problems facing public education.

In view of the effort being made by the educational leadership of the state at the present time for full payment of the very limited appropriations for public education, I want specifically to express my appreciation for the editorial in your issue of March 16. Certainly, there is little hope to build an effective public school system in Georgia when one considers the fact that the state promises its teachers an average salary less than that paid on an average to an unskilled day laborer on WPA. This is particularly true when one considers that the top salary promised by the state to any teacher is $560 a year. To attain this salary a teacher must spend four years in college, spend several thousands dollars in money, and afterwards serve as a teacher for seven years.

If education is to progress in Georgia, its citizenship will have to change its attitude toward public education.

J. I. ALLMAN,
President Georgia

POWER WILL REPLACE

FAMED STEAM ENGINE

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 26.—(P)—A stationary steam engine, advertised as the "largest in the world," at the St. Louis exposition early in the century, soon will be retired from service in favor of TVA power.

The Big Bertha of the power world, the compound engine generating 1,200 horsepower, has been spinning a house-high fly wheel 24 hours a day for 36 years at a milling company. It was purchased from the exposition, where it provided power for the midway. The company is replacing the engine with electric motors to be turned by TVA power.

The policemen, unimpressed, charged her with drunken driving. There is no signal light at East 45th avenue and Washington street.

POILU PUSHES KIT IN BABY CARRIAGE

Writer Sees, Hears Strange Things on French War Front.

By JOHN LLOYD.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT—March 26.—(P)—Would you expect, on a trip to the western front, to find a soldier pushing his war kit around in a baby carriage?

I can assure you it happened. The thought struck me when I saw it was that, here and now, it isn't a question of appearances, but of the best means to an end.

Where the soldier found the perambulator I can't say. The front was near enough so that the men had to wear their helmets.

This fellow, in the middle of the troop, calmly was wheeling his kit in the baby cart. The officer at the head of the file didn't object. The other men seemed merely to think that he was luckier than they.

We came to an outpost. I'll quote the conversation: Captain: "How far did that German patrol get today?" Sergeant in charge of the post: "Look, my captain, they were just over there!" (not more than 150 yards).

Captain: "Did you get a chance at them?" Sergeant: "Oh, yes, we opened up on them. We didn't have as clear a range as the fellows up the line, though. They're the ones who got them."

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

As I indicated in Monday's column, I hope to spend this week at Homassa, Fla. I have been putting in every possible spare minute in the yard and patch, as soil conditions would permit, so that I could go fishing with a clear conscience. My father used to tell us boys that no man ever enjoyed fishing if he was ever grassy. I don't believe I could enjoy even Homassa if I went off and left work that should have been done in the yard and patch.

So I have been digging and planting and pruning and other things going down to work for another season of flowers and vegetables. With the wettest January and February and March I have ever seen, one couldn't fool with this north Georgia dirt too much. It just will not stand it. And, of course, there was even such thing as early vegetable sowings due to the cold and rain. That may prove quite a blessing, after all.

Whenever I have been able to work the ground, I have found it in the finest condition I have ever seen it. The freedom of the crop work in pulverizing the soil. And I have a feeling that the excessive cold took care of many insects that bother us so much. The early flowering shrubs have produced the finest picture of color in many years. Take the geraniums, for example. And the violets appear bluer and more fragrant than ever. As for jonquils, daffodils, crocus and so forth, they are most reassuring in their promise of a fine year. The tulips, here in Atlanta, are just about to take the stage, and I guess they will maintain the high average of the earlier flowers for 1940.

They tell me that the peach orchards in south Georgia are already a riot of color, giving assurance of a great crop of that luscious fruit this year. (Isn't it encouraging to have an announcement from the state authorities that they are going to do something about the representation of a Georgia peach on the 1941 auto tags?) And I can imagine how beautiful the plum and pear orchards down state must be.

I guess that farmers, especially in the southern portion of the state, are able by this time to have their work well along, with many of them having planted corn already. The only things I have been able to get planted are some turnips, mustard, radishes, beans, etc. But I am going along with the feeling that I have done about all the soil would stand for, and if they bite like we hope they will, I will have inspiration sufficient to come back and work harder than ever, hoping for hot sunshine in the days of April, the sort of days when you can really get wet with sweat.

British Can Gain U. S. Goodwill By Observing Her Neutrality

Mackenzie Advises Them To Stop Trying To Get Us in the War.

By DEWITT MCKENZIE.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

The English press has been experiencing a wave of anxiety over what the United States thinks about the war, the burden of its fears being summed up in such headlines as "Britain loses war of words; Goebbels' lies sweep America."

That is to say, British publicity is held to be losing in the race with the brand put out by Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels. Having reached this conclusion, however, the papers don't appear to have discovered any more satisfactory reason for this state of affairs (as they see it) than that "Goebbels gulls America."

This argument about American gullibility might hold good up to a point but it seems to be inconclusive. Abraham Lincoln put the matter rather neatly in the remark that "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can not fool all of the people all of the time."

That goes for Herr Goebbels, too. It is equally true as regards the English newspaper assertion that "Hitler thinks he can fool the United States by talking peace and good will."

That leaves the English newspapers without any satisfactory answer to their problem. However, it's probably well that the question has come up, for it might be a good thing to get it thrashed out before the dogs of war get into full cry.

In the first place I don't believe the situation is as dark as it looks to the British press.

So far as actual "propaganda" goes we don't like any of it and are wary of all of it, whatever its source. However, if we seem particularly shy of certain types of British publicity it strikes me that it is due largely to one reason.

I refer to the rather constant effort to persuade or pull us into the war in support of the Allied cause. This certainly has caused widespread resentment in America, and may have colored the view of some of our people towards legitimate news.

This idea would seem to have fair support in the uproar caused last week in Washington and throughout the country by the strong anti-German, pro-Ally speech of our minister to Canada, James Cromwell, who was publicly rebuked by Secretary of State Hull. Our red-hot reaction to Cromwell's speech should help put Britain right in this matter. Whatever our private thoughts may be, that reaction seemed to show that we are neutral officially and intend to stay so.

It is the pro-Nazi parties in those countries—never important—evaporated like the dew. Now 90 per cent of the people in Sweden, Norway and Denmark hope desperately (but discreetly, for they are in terrible fear) that the Democracies will win this war.

But the German people are not allowed to know a hint of this. Nor are they allowed to guess that Italy broke away from the axis and sent planes to Finland. The terrible price paid by Hitler for his alliance with the Soviets is a complete secret from the German people, although now and then a frightening hint of the truth seeps through.

At the bottom of their hearts the Nazis hope the whole cost will never be paid. They hope that when they have defeated England and France they can then redeem their hostages in the north by force of arms. But they all know that it is a desperate gamble.

Joe Medwick Signs Cardinal Contract for Reported $18,000

Call in The Game

by Jack Troy

Stop That Mann! Any day now directors of the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Louis Cardinals may pull up a chair and say, "Listen, young Mann, we have had enough of this sort of thing. Go away and leave us alone."

Earl Mann is more troublesome than Old Man River, in a baseball sense. Certain clubs can't keep him away from their door.

Zipp Newman (Birmingham News) reports the latest plight in his zippy, informative column, Dusting 'Em Off: "Earl Mann (writes Zipp) is poaching on the Reds' backdoor step in Birmingham and the Cards' backyard in New Orleans. Yes, sir, grabbing 'em right and left. If things go well for the Alabama and Louisiana boys with the Crackers, Atlanta will soon boast an all-Alabama-Louisiana team."

"Crafty Earl Mann hired scouts to comb Alabama and Louisiana for young players. He now has an even dozen from the two states. And he will grab off more if the Reds and Cards don't blanket their A-1 farm territories with scouts, equipped with bank accounts and contracts."

Earl Mann saw the wisdom of several farm clubs for the Crackers several years ago. And he went right out and competed with the major clubs for the youngsters. For the last four years the Crackers have had some of the most promising rookies in the league. And what's more, Earl Mann knows how to obtain big prices for the players developed by the Crackers.

"There are six players on the Crackers' squad from Louisiana State University. They are George Kowalczyk, Dave Hecker, Emil Lochbaum, Bruce Hedrick, Connie Ryan and T. J. Bankston. Rene Cortes, a 17-year-old pitcher, was picked off the New Orleans sandlots."

"The Crackers have a half dozen Birmingham boys on the roster. Luman Harris, Stanley Tubb, Dickey Martin, Jack Suydam, Bruce Hedrick and Tom Drake. (Don't forget Dudley Parker, which makes seven, Zipp.)"

"Paul Florence, Barons president, said the Reds had to keep the Damyankees out of Birmingham. Looks like the same will have to go for the alert Crackers. Only way for the Barons to get even with the Crackers is to go after the Atlanta boys."

Kowalczyk has been released since Zipp wrote the foregoing, and Tubb, Martin and Hecker have been sent out. This still leaves a goodly number of Alabama and Louisiana boys on the roster. Parker, whom Zipp forgot, is a good prospect. The boy can hit.

In the News The Crackers seem to be in the news. Dave Bloom (Commercial Appeal) takes typewriter in hand and, writing under a heading, "Added Spring Note," says . . .

"Optimism apparently has its home in Atlanta. Although it isn't quite time for the Crax to claim the pennant, you can't say those guys aren't looking into the future."

"We read with considerable interest that $1,000 will be added to the sale price of First Baseman Lester Burge every time he hits a home run—which Atlanta people are sure will be frequently."

"And then, to go a little further, they're already jacking up the ante on some young infielder (Connie Ryan to you, David) who never played in the Southern, on the basis of double plays he might make."

"Oh, well, that's the Crackers for you."

That's right, Dave, and if the Crackers come up with a certain player they have in mind, there'll be two races in the Southern league this summer.

The first will end July 4, and the Crackers will then stand by for the other seven clubs to decide a champion the rest of the way.

Another Rucker Another Rucker is battling to make the grade in organized baseball and shows signs of being a comer.

Bill Rucker got four hits for Waycross against the Crackers the other day. He stood out in the game, although Waycross lost.

Jack Doss, of the Tubize Chaitillon Corporation, in Rome, drops a line about Bill:

"Dear Jack:

"Glad to read a couple of notices in The Constitution about Bill Rucker, the Crabapple kid, late of Tubize, in Rome. It brought to mind how ridiculous rumors are, sometimes. It had been said that Bill couldn't hit a curve ball, but I was sitting in the stands behind the plate when he came up against Bobby Durham, who slanted him a real one. He altered into it for a single or a double."

"It's rumored that Bill is a slow runner. Don't believe 'em. He is twice as fast as they think he is; he just looks slow, being such a big boy."

"You know Cordele sent him back last year for some reason or other. A couple of days before he was to leave for Waycross, he says to me: 'Jack (Doss), I ain't coming back this time—I'm gonna stick.' He might come back. If he does, I'm pretty sure his job will be waiting for him, but those four hits against Atlanta the other day argue otherwise. Anyway, Rome and Tubize are pulling hard for Bill Rucker to make good."

"Respectfully,
"JACK DOSS."

Baltimore Routs Cortes To Beat Crackers, 10-3

ROOKIE ALLOWS 7 HITS, 10 RUNS IN FOUR INNINGS

Alf Anderson Makes Spectacular Catch of Texas Leaguer.

By TOM McRAE.

ATLANTA, S. C., March 26.—The Baltimore Orioles seemingly tried to avenge in one afternoon three straight defeats handed them last week by the Crackers.

The swamped the Crackers, 10-3, here today in a game in which the Crackers never figured after the first half of the first.

Rene Cortes, 17-year-old Cracker rookie, lost the charm he held over the Baltimoreans. Last week he worked four innings against them and allowed no hits and one run, unearned. But today it was another story. He yielded seven hits and 10 runs in four innings.

He walked six men, hit one and uncoiled a wild pitch. He gave Paul Richards a hard workout back of the plate. Many balls hit the ground before they crossed the plate, and others Richards had to leap up to pull in.

The Orioles got four in the first on one hit, a homer by Bill Nagel, former Little Rock player, with one on. Connie Ryan, rookie second baseman, muffed a crisply hit grounder by Red Howell that looked like a sure double-play ball.

Ryan later made another error. In the fourth the Orioles got their other six runs on six hits, a hit batsman and a walk.

The Cracker scoring was confined to two runs in the first and another in the second.

Alf Anderson undoubtedly turned in the fielding gem of the day in the fourth. With the bases loaded, Art Graham, former Little Rock player, hit what looked like a Texas leaguer. The ball was far back of third near the foul line, but Anderson made a spectacular catch of it. Roy Smith made a fine catch of Hamilton's drive near third base to partially redeem himself for an error. Smith was suffering from a cold. Hayley is expected to return to the lineup tomorrow.

In the second game with Baltimore here tomorrow afternoon, Paul Richards said Wayne Kerkisick and Luman Harris would probably handle the mound duties.

Kirby's 79 Captures Medal in North-South Golf Tournament

PAGE 4 OTHERS TIE FOR SECOND AT PINEHURST

Jeanne Cline, 16 Years Old, Two Strokes Back,
With 81.

By DOROTHY KIRBY.
PINEHURST COUNTRY CLUB,
Pinehurst, N. C., March 26.—After missing the medal last year by one stroke, I just sneaked in today by the same margin and won with a 79. In the second position was Mrs. Estelle Page, along with four other girls who all tied for the second spot with 80s.

The tournament is being played over a different course than last time. This year we are on the number one course. The third course is where it is usually held.
However, I like this one much better. It is probably a little longer and a bit harder, but is more interesting.

It certainly looked funny to me playing along to see snow all in the rough. We couldn't have asked for a better day today for the sun was out as bright as anything, the only trouble being that it was too cool. I have never seen snow melt the way this did; it was gone just as quick as it came. The only inconvenience that it caused is that two matches will have to be played on Thursday.

Getting into my round of today,
I qualified with Jean Cline and it was certainly fun to watch how she goes about playing the game.
Being only 16, she handles herself like a veteran. She had a fine 38 on the front nine, but slipped a little on the incoming nine for a 43 which gave her an 81.

While all of this was happening I was having my troubles. I took 40 on the first nine, after getting myself a big six on the fifth and another six on the seventh. If these had popped up,
I would have been much better.

Having never seen the back nine I didn't know just what to expect. This was the nine that I started to play when the snow overtook me the other day. Anyway I wound up with 39 blows and I couldn't do without my sixes so I threw one in on the hole for good measure.

As usual all you have to do is go back and you can always find spots where the score could be lower. My shots went better than they have in some time. I hope they will only hold out.

In the same bracket with me is Jean Bauer, Jean Cline, Betty
Abernathy and quite a few other good golfers. The other main names are in the other part of the lower bracket.

A TRIFLE LATE—Almost three months after the season closed, two Atlantans were apprehended Tuesday charged with shooting ducks out of season. Assistant Wildlife Director J. W. Beall is shown above holding the pair of Bluebill Drakes. The season on waterfowl ended December 29.

BLUEBILL DUCKS ARE CONFISCATED

Two Atlantans To Plead Guilty to Hunting Violation.

The duck season closed in all states last December 29, but the shooting of these migratory waterfowl failed to stop with the deadline.

Early morning shooting at Murray's Lake, in Clayton county, and only 15 miles from Atlanta Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, led to the apprehension of two Atlantans Tuesday and the confiscation of two bluebill drakes. The men apprehended by J. W. Beall, assistant wildlife director, and Ranger
C. E. Adams gave their names as
G. R. Anderson, 36, and P. E.
Brown, 41.

Beall said the hunters admitted the violations and agreed to plead guilty in either state or federal courts, where they will face charges of shooting out of season and without plugged guns.

you know. And he's already getting ready for the southern which will be held there
June 18-22.

Polly's golf dates back to the days when Bob Jones was starting his career. In fact, Polly was a member of the famous Knickerbocker foursome. So called because of the youthfulness of the players—
Boyd, Jones, Ewing Watkins, also of Chattanooga, and Perry Adair, the Atlantan.

They made golf history in those days by upsetting veteran teams.
That was back about the time the roaring twenties got under way.
Well, Polly went on to Dartmouth. He won the national intercollegiate when he was captain of the team in his senior year. Then he went to work in a bank. Tournament golf was not taboo, but it was hard for him to get enough to keep his game in championship condition.

He won the city title almost every year. And he changed business connections and took the Tennessee championship four times. Polly became a threat in southern golf. He was hard to beat—a tough competitor.

But he could not get over the hump.

Not until 1937 in the southern amateur at Charlotte did Polly get started toward the title. He reached the semi-finals and ran into Freddie Haas, of New Orleans.

Freddie won the match—3 and 1 was the score as we remember it —but it was a lot closer. Three putts ruined Polly, who was tired. The tournament had been postponed and players had to double up on matches in the morning, finishing those of the day before. Then there was an afternoon match.

Polly, who had dropped six of his 118 pounds, could not stand that. The way he plays, putting everything into most shots, stopped him short of a chance at Charlie Yates in the finals.

That's the nearest Polly has come to the southern title. He may never get that close again, because he does not play as much as he once did. Attending to his official duties also makes it hard for him now.

But we will never forget that crazy Polly battled Haas. No one will know whether he could have halted Yates as Haas did the next day. He might have done it.

Reaching the semi-finals was enough, though.

Twenty years is a long time.
And Polly had been playing championship golf all that time when he ran into Haas at Charlotte.

It is a remarkable record for a man with an unorthodox swing. He favors his right hand and arm. Every one says golf is a left-handed game.

It may be, but not for the popular little red-head who knows every tournament golfer in the south.

Chattanoogans will still take him against any one from within 140 yards of the green.

A fox's tail is important in cold weather—it blankets the nose and foot pads when the fox is lying down.

That's What the Rookies Write When Pitchers Start
Curving 'Em: Foxx Says Most Homers Hit Off Curve Balls.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Dixie Sports Shock: Those rumors that Eddie Waples, husky Georgia freshman tackle, has quit school are as false as Aunt Maggie's hair. . . . The big boy is well and happy . . . and if he keeps on his good behavior he will be hard to keep off the first two teams next fall. . . . Johnny Rucker recently scored the first run this spring off Cleveland's Johnny Humphries. . . . The ex-Pelican had pitched 10 scoreless innings. . . . Jimmy Foxx says 60 per cent of all home runs are hit on curve balls.

that's the truth, the movie pro-

Meet Starts Friday.

GREENSBORO, N. C., March

18 holes tomorrow and the final 36 Thursday.

covered Starmount course and observed that today's bright sun shape for tomorrow's round.

The Asheville Open will start

S. I. C. To Draw Record Entry

BOYS' HIGH TEAM—This inexperienced, but fast-improving Boys' High roller hockey team will battle the Yellow Jackets, composed of Georgia Tech freshmen, tonight at the Rollerdom.

S. I. C. TO DRAW RECORD ENTRY

Six Conference Teams Already Entered in Athens Meet.

ATHENS, Ga., March 26.—(P)—A record gathering of collegiate golfers is indicated April 11, 12 and 13 for the annual Southern Intercollegiate and Southeastern Conference golf tournaments by advance entries received by John Broadnax, tournament chairman.

The Southeastern Conference's decision to hold its annual tournament in conjunction with the Southern Intercollegiate has assured local officials that this year's entry list will be the largest since the inauguration of the event six years ago by the late H. J. Stegeman.

Entries have already been assured from Vanderbilt, Ole Miss, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Duke, Louisiana State University and the University of Georgia. Several schools, including L. S. U., Duke, Tech and Georgia, will enter more than the four men that comprise each team.

Officials are of the opinion not more than 150 golfers can be handled during the first day, when 36-hole qualifying rounds must be played, and it is entirely possible that number will be on hand.

Chairman Broadnax has had inquiries from schools throughout the south and east for information about the tournament, which this year will see the initial presentation of the H. J. Stegeman trophy to the individual champion.

Today's low gross winners in class A were Mrs. J. O. Rhyne and Mrs. W. D. Tumlin. In class B Mrs. O. B. Chatfield and Mrs. J. B. Berry, and in class C Mrs. T. B. Robinson and Mrs. C. D. Fields.

Barney Ross Thinks Brown Is Good Bet

Ex-Champion Saw Ben Lose to Krieger; Recalls Decision at Miami Was Unpopular.

By THAD HOLT.

Ben Brown will have at least two supporters when he starts pitching leather against the favored Tony Zale in Chicago Friday night. One will be Mumbler Sam Sobel, his little manager. And, according to the Chicago Sunday Tribune, Barney Ross, former welterweight champion, has come forward with the prediction that the southerner has a good chance to whip the middleweight division's No. 2 challenger in the Windy City stadium.

At the time, reporters for The Constitution, and they were far from being alone in their convictions, insisted that Brown was the victim of "one of those things," pointing out that he was on his feet, punching when the fight was stopped. Krieger took a beating that night, so bad a licking he fought only one more fight, which he lost. He has not entered the ring since. On the other hand, Brown came back to whip Teddy Yarus twice and gain two draws with Ken Overlin, now classed as the leading 160-pounder contender.

The Tribune went on to say: "Ross said Brown is a hard right-hand puncher and a good boxer. He added that Brown can absorb a terrific wallop, which is important because Zale has won his last nine contests, seven by knockouts.

"After having had his eye cut open in the fourth round, Brown caught Krieger on the jaw with a left hook which dropped him to the canvas for a two count, Ross said. From there on the boys traded blows frequently until the last round when they fell through the ropes during a mixup. This caused so much excitement that instead of starting a count over the fallen boxers Referee Phil O'Connell helped Krieger to his feet. Shortly thereafter Krieger caught Brown off guard with a blow which aggravated the eye injury and the battle was stopped, the verdict going to Krieger.

Billy Bartush, powerful Lithuanian, last night had his hands full in disposing of Marvin Jones, young Texan, in straight falls at the Atlanta theater. Fans will be yelling for Marshall to tear the Lithuanian into bits, following his villainous performance of last night.

Roller Hockey Attracts Five Schools Here

Boys' High Tackles Yellow Jackets Tonight in Second Appearance.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Boys' High and Tech High really started the wheels to rolling when they introduced high school roller hockey to Atlanta a few weeks ago. Three more schools have organized teams and are working out at Lakewood. Russell, Fulton and West Fulton High schools now have teams, and they expect to play Boys' High some time in April.

Tonight at the Rollerdom the Boys' High roller artists will make their second public appearance against the Yellow Jackets, composed of Georgia Tech freshmen. Starting time is 8:15.

The Purples, 4-to-1 conquerors of Tech High, are going into the newly instigated sport in a big way. They already have scheduled the strong St. Petersburg team for a game here on April 5. From the proceeds of these two games and other school teams they hope to raise enough money to play the St. Petersburg outfit a return game in the Florida city April 26.

The tragic death of Forrest Epps Herndon last Sunday gives the roller hockey players of both Tech High and Boys' High even more incentive to perpetuate the game. Herndon was organizer and team captain of the Smithie team.

For months he had dreamed of the day when his team would play Boys' High in the first high school game ever played in Atlanta. Forrest was stricken ill shortly before the game was to be played. He begged to be allowed to see the game, so his mother had him taken to the game in an ambulance.

City-State Parking Fight Ends; Signs Taken Down Near Capitol

Peace reigned once more between the city and state last night, after one-hour parking signs around the capitol had been removed by order of Captain Jack Malcom, head of the police traffic division.

However, the armistice brought up the old question of whether the state owns half of the street surrounding the capitol. The argument between the two governments began when city policemen began to "tag" automobiles parked for more than one hour on the curb next to the capitol. Signs were erected the latter part of last week.

When a state official got a ticket for alleged violation of the parking regulations, Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, sent it to the police department.

Yesterday the battle came to a crisis. Captain Malcom called up Musgrove and told him he was removing the signs.

Asked why he issued these orders, Malcom said he did not want to be "too hard on the out-of-town visitors." He also pointed out that the problem is complicated when the general assembly meets.

He emphasized, however, that the parking regulations affecting the opposite side of the street from the capitol, as well as all yellow curbs, still will be enforced.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall said he was under the impression the state did own half of the street, and that if such was the case the city could not enforce any traffic rules in that area.

PARLEY TO SPEED PLANES SET TODAY

Treasury Looks to U. S. Sale of $1,000,000,000 Order to Allies.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(P) The treasury has summoned aircraft and engine manufacturers to a conference here tomorrow to put into effect a new policy calculated to speed delivery on prospective foreign orders for $1,000,000,000 worth of war planes.

More than a score of representatives of the industry, whose output has been tripled by war orders, were asked to confer with Secretary Morgenthau and officials of the War and Navy Department. The manufacturers' representatives have been negotiating with a British-French purchasing mission in New York.

The conference coincides with the opening tomorrow of an investigation of plane sales by a house military affairs committee. War Department spokesmen have prepared to testify that the armed services expect to benefit substantially from a revised policy liberalizing the sale of planes to foreign countries.

Secretary Woodring and other officials are said to be taking the position that an arrangement permitting Great Britain and France to acquire planes which the army air corps had ordered would save several million dollars and assure later delivery of improved models for American defense forces.

Listening intently to Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown at the opening of The Constitution's Annual Spring Garden School is a section of the large crowd of garden lovers who flocked to the Atlanta Woman's Club yesterday. The class, the first of the spring school, featured a graphic description by Mrs. Crown of colorful summer-flowering bulbs to be planted now. Gardeners are invited to attend the classes today and tomorrow and hear Mrs. Crown's discussions of annuals and flower shows.

The classes are absolutely free, and the numerous sidelights at the school include displays of the newest garden equipment and furniture, and the opportunity to ask Mrs. Crown questions at the close of the lecture.

Unprecedented Low Interest Will Be Paid on Housing Notes

Savannah and Augusta Authorities Effect Major Saving.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Local housing authorities of Savannah and Augusta, Ga., today sold $3,739,000 in short-term notes at interest rates ranging from an unprecedented low of 29-100 of one per cent to 43-100 of one per cent, officials of the USHA announced here today.

As a result of these low interest rates, the local Georgia housing authorities will be saving the difference between what they are now paying and the rate of 3 per cent which they have been generally paying the USHA for money borrowed for construction of slum-clearance projects.

The total amount of cash already advanced by the USHA to Augusta and Savannah housing authorities, and which will be repaid together with accrued interest, and the balance of the proceeds which will be available to finance cost of construction, follows:
Augusta: $1,692,000 in principal advances to be repaid; $8,618 the approximate amount of accrued interest, with a total to be repaid to the USHA of $1,700,618, and a balance available for cost of construction $231,381.
Savannah: $1,214,000 in principal advances to be repaid; $19,380 approximate amount of accrued interest, with a $1,233,380 total to be repaid the USHA, and $632,619 available for cost of construction.

DECATUR LIONS AID HOT-LUNCH DRIVE

Campaign Would Utilize Surplus Commodities.

Members of the Decatur Lions Club last night laid the groundwork of a county-wide program which will aid in the movement to provide hot lunches for undernourished DeKalb school children.

The movement, already under way through the sponsorship of the DeKalb County Clinic, seeks to equip each school with kitchen facilities and provide hot lunches at a minimum cost through the use of surplus commodities.

C. N. Kell, president of the clinic, described the progress so far and told of the needed equipment and facilities which must be supplied. William M. Rainey, superintendent of the DeKalb school system, representatives of the schools and members of the Board of Education also attended the meeting.

Field crews working to eradicate the Dutch elm disease have orders from the United States Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine to sterilize boots and shoes before entering property where livestock is kept.

Big Oaks From Little Bombs Go---Up

WHEW! Duck, everybody! Or you might be the little man who isn't here. Imagine what a real, war-size bomb would do if an eight-ounce charge will wreak such destruction. What's it about? Well, Lester Barlow, that Maryland wizard, put on a demonstration of what his liquid-oxygen-carbon explosive will do. Tucked under two huge logs and detonated, eight ounces of this little plaything reacted thusly. Barlow says his invention could kill every living thing in 1,000 feet. Note giant wood chunks near top of picture. (Story on Page 13)

MUSES IN MUDDLE Poet Thelma Spear Lewisohn reads to son Jimmy (in sailor suit) and his classmates at Lakewood, N. J. A story, no doubt, with Prince Charming and a happy ending. Meantime, her happiness is in doubt, as Poet Ludwig Lewisohn seeks custody of Jimmy, his son, in court.

HAPPY ENDING Mary Noonan, of Savannah, had a solid skull which wouldn't let her gray matter grow. Headaches ensued. Mental growth slowed. But a rare operation fixed it all.

TRAIN TRAP Snowdrifts of the spring blizzard successfully snared this New York-Oswego sleeper, so passengers got their money's worth of dozing. A crew of 50 shovelers set to work at once on the job of freeing the sprawling behemoth from winter's icy grip. (Story on Page 26)

CAUTIOUS And wisely, too. Newshawks and picture grabbers had read eye-opening tales of the ferocity of Lester Barlow's new explosive when unleashed, so, cherishing their hides, they crouched behind a sandbag embankment as the inventor demonstrated his power.

A new variety of pear which has good qualities and resists fire blight has been introduced by government scientists.

Barlow Explosive So Powerful Eight Ounces Kite Huge Pole

Small Charge Skyrocket
40-Foot Timber 50
Feet Into the Air.

By DALE CLARK.

BALTIMORE, March 26.—(P)—Lester Barlow's liquid oxygen-carbon explosive, so powerful an eight-ounce charge sent a 40-foot telephone pole flying skyward, withstood a public trial of shock and fire today and the inventor announced tonight he was ready for government tests.

He said he would send his proposals for official trials to the senate military affairs committee tomorrow and predicted the first would be held within three weeks. They were ordered after a meeting last week of congressional war and naval committees.

Before nearly 75 newsmen and photographers, Barlow conducted a series of tests to prove the stability of this explosive he claims is the deadliest ever devised by man—a crushing power that can wipe out all life within a 1,000-foot radius.

The "detonating waves" which he says are the killing forces that will result from a 1,000-pound charge were not evidenced today. A five-pound charge, the largest demonstrated, was set off in a dug-out rimmed with sandbags. With a tremendous roar the bags flew into the air and the force was clearly felt 1,000 feet away.

But, Barlow emphasized today's tests were only to refute some critics' claim that liquid oxygen bombs are too delicate for military use.

He sent a telephone pole 50 feet into the air with the eight-ounce charge and the pole split asunder, sending smaller chunks 150 feet high.

To show its immunity to fire he set another eight-ounce charge ablaze with an excelsior torch. It flared, but did not explode.

He fired a high-powered rifle through a pound and a half bag of the explosive, known as glinite, and it didn't detonate.

The explosive can be produced for about 10 cents a pound for military use, he estimated, and for about 4 and 1-2 cents a pound for commercial uses for which certain treatment is not required.

W. M. S. DELEGATES TO HEAR MISSIONARY

Nearly 500 Women From North Georgia Attending Rally.

Nearly 500 delegates from women's missionary societies throughout the North Georgia Methodist conference will gather at 9:30 o'clock this morning in the Glenn Memorial chapel of Emory University for their second meeting in the thirtieth annual business session.

At 8 o'clock tonight the featured speaker will be Dr. Walter Judd, conference medical missionary who recently has returned from China. He will talk on "Missions in a Changing World."

Record Attendance.
The meeting this year, it was said, has set a record attendance, attracting delegates from nearly every society in the North Georgia conference. A round of social functions has been planned for the delegates by prominent Atlanta Methodist women.

Also on today's program will be Mrs. D. R. Little, chairman of the spiritual life and message committee; Mrs. Mac Brown, superintendent of supplies; Mrs. E. W. Brogdon, conference treasurer; Mrs. H. Also on the first program were Mrs. Stewart Colley, superintendent of Christian social relations; Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames and the Rev. W. G. Henry, who led the worship last night.

The final gathering at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning will include Mrs. James D. Fluker, superintendent of literature and publicity; Charles Britton, of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate; Dr. Harry W. Cox, president of Emory University, and the Rev. Lester Rumble.

NEW FARM CREDITS URGED BY WALLACE

Secretary Cites 200,000
Mortgages Foreclosed in 10 Years.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(P)—Declaring that 200,000 farm mortgages have been foreclosed in the last 10 years, Secretary Wallace endorsed "in the main" today a farm credit reorganization plan which would give Federal Land Bank borrowers lower interest rates and readjust both principal and interest in hardship cases.

The bill would, among other things, lower the interest rate on both Federal Land Bank and Land Bank commissioner loans to 3 per cent. They are now 3½ and 4 per cent, respectively.

The measure also would provide for scaling down the principal of mortgages on "over-burdened" property, would permit the spreading out of loan repayment so as to reduce annual installments, would relieve borrowers from taking out 5 per cent of their loans in Federal Land Bank stock, would provide for recall of present Land Bank stock and for new issues of government-guaranteed bonds.

$22,000 IS RAISED FOR PARKER CHAIR

Methodists Seek Endowment Honoring Dean
Emeritus at Emory.

Preliminary reports yesterday revealed that $22,000 of a proposed $100,000 fund had been donated by Methodist ministers in the church's southeastern jurisdiction to endow a chair of theology at Emory University in recognition of Dr. Franklin N. Parker.

The announcement followed a meeting held in Macon, where ministers of the South Georgia conference, one of 18 conferences in the nine-state jurisdiction, launched final plans which April 1 will inaugurate their part of the campaign.

The drive, begun three months ago in eight of the conferences, is directed at over 5,000 Methodist ministers in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, Tennessee, Virginia, North and South Carolina. The campaign is being directed by the Rev. Edward G. Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church of Atlanta.

The preliminary report included funds received from the drive already organized in eight conferences, and scattered, early contributions from the remaining 10 conferences which formally will begin the campaign April 1.

Dr. Parker, who will be honored by the endowment of a chair, is dean emeritus of the Candler school of theology at Emory, and an active professor in the school's faculty since 1913.

Should a Girl Marry a Man Who's Twice Her Age?

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: We are both divorced. His wife and my husband each remarried. He is twice my age and wants to marry me. I want to get married but I don't know whether or not it's him or marriage that I really want. What on earth shall I do? Life is so hard for a divorced woman; no wonder she grasps at any straw. This is why I'm in such a quandary. DIVORCEE.

ANSWER:

Friend, a man twice your age is not a good marriage prospect. You love him to distraction, have mutual interests and a common point of view. A spinster who had never been married might well be excused for catching the last train, but there's no excuse for a divorcee's marrying a man twice her age merely to get over being a divorcee.

Generally speaking, the divorcee has admitted she won't take what's unpleasant (exceptions of course) and her first marriage should have taught her that marriage isn't all beer and skittles, regardless of who the partner is and how he behaves. If she's capable of learning from experience, she knows that marriage which takes one out of solo class and puts one in duet class may, if all goes well, double joys but definitely doubles sorrows and calls for self-restraint, self-control, self-denial and a willingness to take it on the chin. Not even love, first essential for a good marriage, is enough to put over that program. But certainly it can't be put over without love.

Bad as it is, loneliness isn't the worst thing in the world. Every one of us has complete control over his loneliness. We can do something about it, without getting married, too. No doubt life is hard for a divorced woman, but could it be as hard as the life of an unhappily married woman? Logically a divorcee must answer "No."

Life is set up in such a way that we can't make a convenience of those who love us and get any satisfaction out of it unless we give value received. So a woman who marries a man just to be marrying usually cheats herself and him. Even though she's cold blooded to the point that she puts on an act at first and deceives him about the state of her feelings, eventually the truth leaks out and when it does, there's the dead end. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Average Man Chooses Pie When Ordering His Dessert

By Sally Saver.

"Make mine pie," is a familiar order when Americans, men in particular, are choosing desserts. And why shouldn't it be when fruits or fruit-flavored fillings that fairly melt in your mouth are brought to you on a wedge-shaped bit of crust so flaky and tender that with every bite you give thanks for a good appetite? Lemon pie is a great favorite; apple and lemon pie run neck and neck for first place as the leading desserts, so investigators report.

Lemon meringue or lemon chiffon of that melt-in-your-mouth goodness should be a part of the repertoire of every cook. Here is a lemon-chiffon filling recipe:

Lemon Chiffon Pie.

- 1 tablespoon gelatin
- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 2 egg yolks
- 3 egg whites
- 2-3 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Soak gelatin in one-fourth cup cold milk for five minutes. Scald remaining milk in a saucepan over low heat or in a double boiler. Beat egg yolks and gradually add sugar and salt. Add hot milk to egg yolk mixture. Return to heat and stir until slightly thickened. Remove from heat, add lemon juice, grated rind and gelatin, and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool. When cool fold in the egg whites beaten until stiff and dry. When mixture is cool enough to hold its shape, pour into pie shell and place in refrigerator until it sets. Spread with whipped cream.

The shell may be made of rolled graham cracker crumbs, rolled corn flake crumbs or it may be a pastry shell, baked before the filling is poured into it. The crumb shells, of course, need no baking.

Questions about foods, quantity buying, recipes or service will be answered personally by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or Walnut 5565.

Try Criticizing The Reflection In Your Mirror

By Ida Jean Kain.

Identical twins should be beautiful. When they look at each other, they are obliged to take a detached view of themselves and see themselves as others see them!

But for a fact, the records would seem to indicate that twins are extraordinarily attractive. . . . not always pretty, but definitely better than average looking. Perhaps another explanation, besides that of the critical viewpoint, is the aura of lime-light usually accorded twins. Being in the limelight is enough to make anyone take more pains with her looks. And sometimes that is all that is needed to turn the average looking woman into a Menace!

But the other day on Broadway, where you can see anything, I saw two upset these neat theories. I had to look at them twice before I found out why they didn't rate a second glance! Then I saw that: They had identical poor postures and figures. They were away too thin. Both were slumped. Both had rounded shoulders.

And everything else was wrong, too—from lifeless hair to the trick of pointing the toes outward when they walked. I could scarcely believe my eyes. I have always thought that if there were anything worse than being mediocre looking, it would be to have a twin in the same fix.

In this instance it was really inexcusable, because there was no physical reason why those girls couldn't have been beautiful! There was nothing wrong with their looks that could not have been overcome. As a matter of fact, most of the wrong things were their own fault!

Having a double to look at should be incentive enough to make any woman perk up! But maybe with the twins it was the same as it is with the woman in the mirror. We get so used to seeing our reflection that it doesn't make any impression.

If you could stand off and give your reflection a critical going-over, it would be easy to see all the things which do not seem to matter, but which, added up, make all the difference in the woman who is very attractive and the one who is only passable.

Try to criticize the woman in the mirror as if she were a new neighbor. Study her as she stands, sits and walks. Does she hold her head beautifully? Does she poke her neck forward? Does she slump and let her shoulders sag? Is she too fat? Or too thin? Or is her figure out of proportion, with scrawny chest and shoulders and a spreading waistline?

Could you stand it if you had a twin who was your counterpart?

Woman's Quiz

Q. How can one determine the proper temperature for a room in which small children play?

A. Have a thermometer about three feet from the floor. The temperature should be from 65 degrees to 68 degrees if the children are properly dressed and protected. Healthy babies are much better off in a cool room. The should be protected by screens against drafts of cold air.

Q. Do the Dionne quintuplets take cod liver oil?

A. A news account of their daily activities states that they have orange juice and cod liver oil every morning before breakfast.

Q. How is scurvy made?

A. Select three pounds of bone pieces of pork. Simmer in three quarts of water until the meat drops from the bone. Strain off the broth, remove the bone, taking care to remove all tiny pieces, and chop the meat fine. There should be about two quarts of broth and, if necessary, add water to make this quantity. Bring broth to the boiling point, slowly add two cups of cornmeal and cook until it is a thick mush, stirring constantly. Add chopped meat, salt, red pepper, sage and thyme to taste. Pour hot scurvy in loaf pans that have been rinsed in cold water. Let stand until cold and firm, slice and fry in a hot skillet until brown. In addition to boiled and ground pork chops, heart and lungs may be added.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address and enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington, D. C. For a reply. ## This Merry-Mad Perfume of Carnival Mood Is Dedicated to Those Fun-Loving Americans!

By LILLIAN MAE.

A French perfumer is responsible for this new perfume of carnival mood—the fragrance which flutters its fragrance on those whose hearts would be blithe, whose spirits buoyant, and whose intentions are strictly frivolous.

And then this perfumer decided that during these troublous times when the western world is in upheaval with wars and whatnot, his new fragrance was frankly for Americans—only on whose continent there are bright lights and bright laughter. So it's to America where fun and frolic are still impulsive and infectious—and to Americans, that he dedicates this new merry-mad fragrance!

I'm informed that he worked over the composition two years before he was ready to release the new creation—that he put into it materials never before used in perfume. Naturally, the result is something entirely new.

When the bottle is first opened,

Here's a bottle of the gala new perfume. Like tiny flakes of confetti, it clings delicately and persistently to a reminder of gay times.

There's a somewhat sweet note which develops into a very warm, vibrating and highly aromatic character. It's neither heavy nor light, but like tiny flakes of confetti, it clings delicately and persistently to the surface it meets as a gay reminder of frivolous occasions. It conveys a sense of vivid variegated colors swirling in gay chaos.

I learned about this gala new perfume on a recent visit to New York—that is, the Fifth Avenue representative of the Paris concern raved to me about it, though it had not been prepared for distribution at that time, but I took it all with a proverbial grain of salt and promptly dismissed it from my mind until a few days ago, when I received one of the first bottles to be distributed. Now I join with the manufacturer in raving about the new fragrance which promises a whirl of gaiety, invites you to be carefree and light-hearted.

Even the package is dressed in gala attire. It is presented in a cylindrical flacon with petticoat ruffles of glass flitting 'round the curve of crystal and sculptured bow of glass knotted perky on the stopper. Even the small packages—the one and two-dram flacons—are presented in special versions.

Phone me, and I'll tell you the name of the new perfume so that you may be one of the first to wear it in your "set." Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

MY DAY: Easter Egg Rolling At the White House

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I understand that this Easter was the coldest since 1890. In corroboration I can testify that Miss Thompson and I found the sunrise service at the Unknown Soldier's tomb a triumph of the spiritual over the physical. The seats were all taken in spite of the weather, which congealed both hands and feet. I saw Governor Price, of Virginia, opening and closing his hands as though they were getting numb and I was glad that none of the young people staying in the house had decided to get up to accompany me. Instead, I took them to the 11 o'clock service at St. Thomas' church.

I did not ride in the afternoon as I had planned; the cold and gray skies made me decide to stay indoors and work at my desk. Some more guests arrived and last night nine children were in the house.

Today is very cold and there is no threat of rain, so I think the crowd on the lawn will do very little damage to the grass during the annual Easter egg rolling. As usual, we went down at 9:30 a. m. and I spoke over the radio and said a few words for the newscasts. Then I walked around the grounds and spoke to the members of the George Washington High school band of Alexandria, Va., and to some members of the Boys' Club of the Metropolitan police, which was to play later. Later in the day, the Montgomery County (Maryland) High school band, the National Training school band and the United States Marine band played for the entertainment of our guests. The youngsters, with baskets filled with eggs, were all warmly dressed and seemed to be enjoying themselves in spite of the chilly air.

I went for a ride at 11 o'clock and at a little after 2 I went out on the grounds again to see how many more children had braved the cold. At 2:30 the Rochester University Glee Club sang two numbers on the porch and then a few numbers in the east room. At 3 o'clock, the small children, who usually come Easter Sunday afternoon for a party, arrived. They had their movies and ice cream and cake and a look out on the lawn and left before our official visitors from Costa Rica arrived.

I must tell you that the movie, "Rebecca," made from Daphne De Maurier's book, is excellent. It holds your interest all the time. Judith Anderson does a wonderful piece of character acting as Mrs. Danvers. The two principals are charming and convincing. They were wise to end the picture so that you can imagine the future will be happier and that Rebecca's evil influence will finally pass away. Evil influences have a dreadful way, however, of sticking around and one disagreeable person in a family can shadow the present and the future for a long time.

New Basic Dress

By Barbara Bell.

It takes a matron's figure to wear this suave, extremely smart dress (1943-B) and really do it justice! The back is one long, heightening, unbroken line. The front is fitted into the waistline by easy darts, and gathers below the shoulders give sufficient ease, with no bulkiness, over the bust. Even the row of buttons, below the deep v-neckline, accent the lengthening and therefore slenderizing effect. A narrow fold and a tailored bow introduce the spring-like touch of white.

As you can see, from the absence of intricate detailing, this pattern is easy to make; one that you'll repeat many times. It will be stunning in dark crepe, rayon jersey or sheers, with white pique or sharkskin for trimming. Send for your pattern right now. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1943-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 5/8 yards of 39-inch material without nap; 1 3/4 yards bias fold; 2-3 yard ribbon.

Send, right this minute, for Barbara Bell's New Fashion Book! It's a brilliant pattern parade of the best spring styles, in designs that you can easily, thrifly, make at home! Everything you want—home frocks, dressy clothes, sports outfits, lingerie, adorable children's clothes.

Price of pattern 15 cents, book 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

STARS TEAMED AGAIN.

Last teamed six years ago, in "Chance at Heaven," Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea are currently co-starring in RKO Radio's "Primrose Path." Marjorie Rameau, Miles Mander, Queenie Vassar, Henry Travers and Joan Carol complete the cast.

Laraine Day, all dressed up for the party, is the fun-loving type who would select this perfume of carnival mood, the new fragrance a French perfumer has just dedicated to America. Miss Day has a leading role in the United Artists' production, "My Son, My Son."

Adequate Vitamin Intake Needed To Fight Colds

Dr. William Brady.

Bright young woman writing an article for magazine says "There is no evidence at all that good nutrition, cod liver oil, vitamin supplements, bare legs, cold baths or ultraviolet light will prevent a cold. Keeping in good physical condition, with plenty of sleep, does help prevent colds and the complications following them."

(The help sounds like a radio announcer getting by the federal bureau.)

In the first place nobody but the young woman can guess what disease or diseases she has in mind when she says "cold."

In the next place, there is considerable evidence that good nutrition has much to do with anybody's immunity, especially immunity to respiratory infection. Every physician recognizes the value and importance of proper food for the patient who is fighting tuberculosis, and tuberculosis is one of the respiratory infections.

It is true that vitamin A is no more "anti-infective" than is any other vitamin. At the same time it is now well known that the mucous membrane epithelium—the first line of defense against infection—depends on an adequate daily intake of vitamin A to keep it in perfect functional condition. So there is not only good scientific ground but clinical experience to support the belief that not just vitamin A, but an adequate daily intake of vitamin A tend to build or maintain immunity against respiratory infection.

The bright young woman implies that plenty of sleep keeps one in good physical condition. I suggest that for every individual who gets less sleep than he or she should have, a thousand get insufficient daily rations of vitamins to maintain optimal nutrition or vite from sheer poverty, from everyday ignorance or from the misleading teachings of bright young women who write articles for magazines and half-baked opinions of medical practitioners who have lost track of what's going on in medicine or medical theories who have never practiced at all.

The insincerity of the young woman's cynicism appears in the final paragraph where the simple layman finds this bit of third grade logic:

"In their ignorance, laymen may be impatient at the little science knows about so silly and common an illness as the cold. But the doctors, who are busier at cold research than ever before, already know quite enough to prevent much of the damage and suffering caused by colds if laymen would only stop applying their pet remedies long enough to listen."

I'm only a doctor and I wouldn't know, but if we may take this bright young woman's essay as an index of the present state of medical knowledge, the doctors

For Sunny Days

By Lillian Mae.

This way to the Sunshine Special! Pattern 4417, by Lillian Mae, one of the smartest sports modes of the season—a suntan dress topped by a gay bolero. The sleeveless frock has a square neckline cut low in back to welcome the sun's rays. A jaunty buttoning to the waist is most decorative. The full-cut bodice lines give action-freedom while swinging that raucous or club. You'll like the free-and-easy lines of the flaring skirt too. How useful the tailored bolero is for dashing into town or when you've had enough sun!

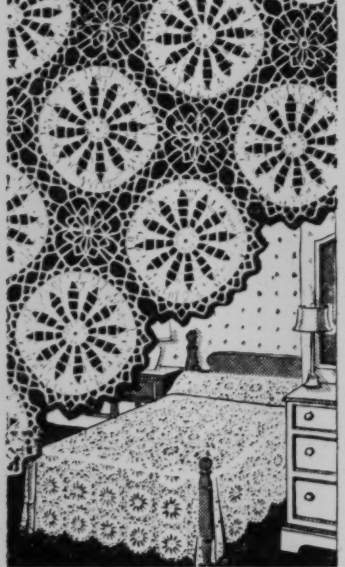

Pattern 4417 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 dress, takes 3 1/2 yards 35-inch fabric and bolero, 1 1/2 yards contrast.

Colleen Moore Lends Home To Former Film Millionaires

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 26.—Mickey Rooney was asked to wear "lifts" to make him taller for a scene in his current Andy Hardy picture. But Master Rooney said, "No." Funny thing. A year ago Mickey was extremely conscious of his lack of height and went to a lot of gymnastic lengths in an effort to grow taller. But he is now reconciled to his lack of inches—or seems to be—and is the first to joke about it. I saw him on the set the other day posing for a picture between two rather tall girls. When they tried to crouch down to the level of Mickey's height he said, "No, that's not the way," and put his arms around their necks and asked them to swing him up!

It's a long time since Colleen Moore made a picture in Hollywood, but she is still the owner of a beautiful estate in Beverly Hills. Usually the house is rented, but when it is not, Colleen lends it to former film millionaires who are now down on their luck. The most recent occupant was a once-famous film director who in his—and Colleen's—heyday, earned $17,000 a week. He can't get a job in the movies now, but whenever Miss Moore's house is vacant he lives in the palatial home, staffed with servants and equipped with swimming pool.

tennis court and beautiful gardens. Nice going, Miss Moore.

Here's a good publicity idea for Charlie Chaplin. On April 16, Charlie celebrates his 51st birthday anniversary. So does a certain Adolf Hitler. Why not release "The Dictators" on that date, Charlie? I understand the picture, in which Charlie ridicules Herr Hitler, is practically completed.

Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh have been asked to name their own price for a weekly radio program of condensed Shakespeare plays—to start at the conclusion of their imminent "Romeo and Juliet" tour. . . . Ellen Drew was driving to the studio when she ran out of gas. She hailed a stranger and asked him to push her car to the sidewalk. "I'll do it for three dollars," he told her. This was all right with Ellen. When the job was over, the man said, "Thanks, Connie. I once worked for your father Richard Bennett!"

Lana Turner's favorite wedding present from husband Artie Shaw is her social security number—in diamonds! . . . Judy Garland almost choked to death on the "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante" picture. She has swallowed the cap of her tooth. "It's the third time I've done that," says Judy, when she can talk.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Atlantans Invited To Tea With ZaSu Pitts in New York

TEA WITH the movie star, ZaSu Pitts, was only one of the many pleasures enjoyed by Mrs. Fred Patterson and Mrs. Harold Coolidge last week in New York. The International Flower Show held recently at the Grand Central Palace was the event that attracted the Atlanta matrons to New York, but they had such a good time they prolonged their visit for a week afterwards, having only returned during the past week end.

It was through a former Atlantan, Mrs. Frank Freeman, that they met Miss Pitts. As you know, Mrs. Freeman, the former Margaret Harris, is the wife of Paramount's production chief on the west coast, and now makes her home in Beverly Hills, Cal. Since moving to California two years ago, she has become a popular figure in film circles and numbers among her good friends the inimitable ZaSu, whom she describes as "a charming, unaffected, home-loving person."

Mrs. Freeman recently visited her mother, Mrs. J. H. Harris, here and, upon leaving Atlanta, she went to New York for a month's stay.

Of course she immediately got in touch with Miss Pitts, who is appearing daily on a radio program in New York. And when she heard her Atlanta friends were in the metropolis, she invited them to meet ZaSu at tea at her hotel, the Savoy-Plaza.

"She is in real life just as she is on the screen," said Mrs. Patterson, "and the screamingly funny way she uses her hands is perfectly natural." The Atlantans were so charmed with her, it seems, that they begged her to give one of her radio skits. Accordingly, she rehearsed the next day's script for their especial benefit. In fact, it was just like going to a play with ZaSu in the leading role, they declared.

SPRING HOLIDAYS are always a signal for the arrival of attractive belles from various colleges. No Atlantan has a more admiring circle of friends than beautiful Bungle Fuller, the stately brunet second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fuller.

Bungle, you know, chose textbooks instead of date books, and last fall returned to Finch School in New York in lieu of making her debut. She was elected vice president of the club, you recall, and even with this incentive to remain here she nevertheless returned to New York.

She is scheduled to arrive here on Monday, and is bringing her class mate, Mary Catherine McDonald, of Forest Hills, L. I., and Betty Helms, of Beverly Hills, Cal., for a visit. En route home the trio will stop in Washington to visit Tom and Deas Smith.

Speaking of Finch, Sally is remembered that another attractive belle studying there arrives tomorrow. She is Sally Cobb Johnson, who is attending the Junior College, and who is also enjoying a series of good times in New York. While here she will be the guest of her mother, Mrs. A. F. Johnson, and will be an admired belle attending the spring festivals.

AFTER THEIR marriage, which will be an important event of June, Sue Clapp and Charlie Freeman will begin housekeeping in their own home. The betrothal of the popular couple was announced last Sunday, you know, and culminates a courtship of long standing.

The house will be a wedding present to the pair from the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Clapp, and will be erected on an attractive lot on Flagler avenue in Ansley Park. The location will be most convenient to the Clapp residence on The Prado, and of course, the bridal couple is literally "up in the clouds" with excitement.

An important meeting of the ### Visiting Belles Will Be Honored

Visiting belles and their guests, who are spending the holidays here, continue to be honored at gala social affairs. An interesting affair of this afternoon will be the tea at which Miss Evelyn Harrison will be hostess at her home on Wesley road honoring Miss Caroline Yundt and her guests.

Misses Virginia Ramsdell, of Philadelphia, and Miss Marilyn Kirby, of Columbus, Ohio.

On Friday, Miss Karen Norris will entertain at a luncheon at her home on Peachtree Battle avenue complimenting Miss Mary Carter and her guest, Miss Elsie Jackson, of Lynchburg, Va., popular students at Sweet Briar College in Virginia.

On Saturday Miss Carter will honor Miss Jackson and another guest, Miss Charlotte Gubler, of Birmingham, who arrives next day to visit Miss Carter, at a dinner party at the Mirador Room of the Capital City Club.

Art To Be Shown At Studio Club.

Among interesting events of today will be the open house for members of the Studio Club at the quarters on Ellis street with Miss Frances Woolford, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harris and Stewart Gelders acting as official hosts. Mr. Harris is president of the club.

The affair will be featured by the opening exhibit of small sculpture from the Robinson Gallery, of New York, and also an informal discussion of Winslow Fitzgerald, dancers, by Mrs. Lafayette Butler.

Calling hours will be between 4 and 6 o'clock and the exhibit will be held at the club headquarters through April 7.

future residents and the contractors for the home was held last evening, and Sally is informed that building will begin almost any day now.

And, speaking of wedding presents, Sue and Charlie received from the former's grandmother, Mrs. George M. Clapp, a handsome silver tray upon the occasion of their betrothal announcement Sunday. The tray was their first wedding gift, and will always rank among their most prized possessions.

AFTER GRADUATING from North Avenue Presbyterian school last June, Margie Evans enrolled at Dennison University in Grantville, Ohio. The spring vacation at this well-known college does not begin until next Saturday, and on that day Margie arrives to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Evans, at their Fairview road residence.

Accompanying Margie to Atlanta will be her classmates, Barbara Tight, of San Francisco, Cal., and Jean Zimmerman, of Columbus, Ohio, who are greatly excited over their first visit to the deep south. The trio of attractive and congenial college belles are members of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and they will motor to Athens to spend several days at the Theta chapter house.

Aside from being a Kappa Alpha Theta, Margie is a popular member of the Phi Pi sorority, in which she was inducted during her high school days.

The newly elected officers of the Piedmont Garden Club are, left to right, Mrs. Bruce Woodruff, president; Mrs. Parks Hunt, vice president; Mrs. Wright Bryan, recording secretary; and Mrs. Colquhitt Carter, treasurer. The election meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Oliver Healey on Vernon road.

Spaghetti

has "oomph" in This Enticing New Dish!

To raise the social standing of vegetables, try merging them, as in this subtly flavored dish, with tender tempting Mueller's Spaghetti.

SPAGHETTI MACEDOINE
1 pkg. Mueller's Spaghetti
1 eggplant
1 cup mushrooms, cut small
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 clove garlic (if desired)
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut eggplant in thin slices and let stand awhile. Then dry thoroughly and sauté with mushrooms in butter. Add parsley, salt, pepper and garlic, and simmer 15 minutes. Meanwhile, cook Mueller's Spaghetti as directed. Mueller's cooks to tender perfection in just 9 minutes, due to an exclusive drying process. Remove garlic and combine eggplant mixture with hot spaghetti. Serve at once on hot platter. Serves 6.

Mueller's Spaghetti may be served piping hot. Mueller's never has that sticky coating of excess starch that requires a cold-water rinse. Its dependability and high quality have made Mueller's a favorite with home-makers for over 75 years. For delicious, satisfying and economical main dishes, remember Mueller's Spaghetti!

DIES THREATENS REDS WITH PRISON

Warns Them in Seeking Complete List of Party Members.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP) Representative Dies, Democrat, Texas, warned tonight that he would seek to have every Communist leader in the United States sent to jail for contempt unless they furnished his committee with a complete list of Communist party members.

He said he had information that members of the party were acting as secret agents for Moscow and sending American military and industrial secrets to Soviet authorities. He said such activities, he held, it was necessary that the government know the names of the estimated 100,000 party members in this country.

"It's a mighty strange thing that this government can't get the information on people within its own boundaries when a foreign government already has it," Dies said.

"We're going to try to get all the Communist leaders to come before our committee, and they will be asked to supply the names. If they don't, such activities in contempt proceedings against them. The law will permit the government to keep them in jail if they don't talk."

The Texas said that he proposed to follow the same course with reference to Nazi and Fascist groups.

TRAIL'S END

Mosely Calls on Anne at the Boarding House. He Offers To Buy the 'Sentinel'

By William MacLeod Raine.

SYNOPSIS. When Carl Rogers, editor of the "Powder Horn Sentinel," is killed in an auto accident in the land-grant fund by Russell Mosely's Hat T riders, Anne Eliot, of Massillon, Ohio, his niece, inherits the paper. As she steps from the stagecoach at Blanco, there is a pistol shot. Jim Silcott's hat is whisked from his head, but the editor, who succeeded Rogers, recovers it before running to a doorway. Buck Sneve, a Hat T rider, levels his gun again, but he drops dead as a door closes behind Silcott. This fatal gun play had followed Sneve's appearance in the Trail's End with Jud Prentiss, his foreman, and other Hat T riders. Jud dragging Jesse Lamprey after him, Jud accused Jesse of double-crossing Mosely in the feud. Jesse's younger brother, Phil, refused to leave with him, and when Jud started to hit Phil, Silcott, waiting for a game of poker, asked if Mosely's orders included beating up the boy. Angerily, Jud warned Jim he was on dangerous ground and piled the quit on Jesse until he fell writhing to the floor, and left with the Hat T men. It was then that they lay in wait for Jim. Ma Russell, Anne's boarding-house keeper, has Rufus take Anne to the "Sentinel" office. Jud and his men shoot up the place, but leave when Jim tells them Anne is inside. She tells Jim he must go away, but he says he can't let Mosely drive him out and wait for a newspaper. Sheriff Lawson threatens to arrest Jim, but Anne says she will defend herself and she will print posters telling the truth about the Hat T men.

INSTALLMENT X.

Something in the girl's manner cautioned Jim. "He has been friendly with Jess, but Jud Prentiss seemed to think that Jess was turning against the big ranch," he said. "Maybe Jess has just begun to find him out."

Rufe started to speak, but his friend flashed a warning look. "That may be it," the editor said.

"Do you know the Lamprey boys well?" Anne asked. "They come from my home town."

The men looked at her in surprise. "All of us know everybody out here," Rufe replied. "Are the Lampreys friends of yours?"

She answered in one word. "Yes."

When Anne walked into Mrs. Russell's little parlor to meet the owner of the Hat T ranch she faced a surprise. She expected to see evil and malignity written on Russell Mosely's face. Instead, her first impression was of a man strong and masterful but friendly. He had a muscular broad-shouldered body, a well-shaped head covered with thick wavy brown hair, and a jaw that told of a dominant will.

He held out a hand as he introduced himself, but just at the moment the sun was in her eyes and she did not have to see it. Until she knew more about the death of her uncle she did not care to fraternize with those who had been his enemies.

Mosely ignored the rebuff, if it was meant for one. "First, I want to welcome you to Blanco, Miss Eliot," he said with a pleasant smile. "I hope you will like our town and decide to stay here. This cattle country is rough on the outside, but you'll find most of the people upstanding citizens."

"I have already been welcomed by your men, Mr. Mosely," she told him, a little stiffly. "They paid me a visit last night."

He showed surprise. "I didn't know that. Perhaps you will explain."

"Didn't they tell you that they attacked my printing plant, shot through the door and windows, and would have smashed their way in if my friends had not driven them away?"

"I have to apologize for that, Miss Eliot, and of course I'll pay any damages," he went on to explain, suavely. "My men were excited because a young ruffian had killed one of their companions, but that does not in the least excuse them. I'm sorry for what they did."

"Then it was not by your orders?"

"My dear young lady," he protested. "I'm a law-abiding man, a good influence in the community. I hope. Not for a moment will I countenance such wild behavior."

"Then I suppose you'll discharge the men who did it," she said promptly.

He was a little taken aback at her swift response. "Of course. If they really were my men and if they can be identified."

"One of them was your foreman, Jud Prentiss."

"You saw and recognized him?" the Hat T man asked.

Anne knew he had her. "I heard his voice."

"You are acquainted with him then? You have heard it often enough to be sure it was his?"

"No-o," she admitted reluctantly. "The men with me knew it."

"May I ask who they were?"

The girl shook her head. "I won't give names," she said.

His smile was not quite so friendly. The gray eyes were cold and flinty.

"Perhaps I can guess, Miss Eliot. Two scoundrels of no character who are enemies of mine." "I'm sorry for that, because I want you to have confidence in me. This man Silcott who has been running your uncle's paper—" "My paper now," she interrupted.

"So I understand. He is no editor, Miss Silcott. The fellow runs a small ranch close to the Hat T. It is known that he rustles our calves, even though we haven't yet caught him at it. He is always in fights and trouble of one kind or another. A turbulent unruly scamp who maligns better men than himself. No stability in him. A girl is likely to become interested in a dashing reckless vagabond like this scoundrel. I think it my duty—"

"To warn me not to fall in love with him. You are really too kind, Mr. Mosely. I don't deserve such solicitude from a stranger."

He laughed, ruefully. "All right, Miss Eliot. I give up. Make your own friends and find out later that I am right."

"You can say I told you so" when you find me weeping," she suggested. "Now if you're quite through, Mr. Mosely, I mustn't keep you any longer."

"But I'm not through. I presume you are here to realize on the property left by your uncle. The 'Sentinel' is a white elephant on your hands, but in view of the circumstances I am prepared to buy it from you."

"What circumstances?" she asked, her eyes watching him.

"Naturally you don't know anything about country newspapers. A young lady like you has never been allied by contact with business of any kind. The only way to make even a living out of a paper like the 'Sentinel' is for the owner to edit and run it himself. You couldn't hire anybody else to do it without losing money. There is nothing left for you to do but sell it."

"Except run it myself," she said quietly.

He smiled broadly at her jest. "I hadn't thought of that." In his masterful way, he pushed straight on. "It'll not drive a hard bargain with so charming a young lady. You may depend on me to pay a little better than a fair price. The Powder Horn country needs a good paper. I am willing to supply that need."

"I think I won't sell it—at least not yet."

"Why not?" he wanted to know. His frosty eyes challenged her decision.

"I've told you. I'm going to run the paper."

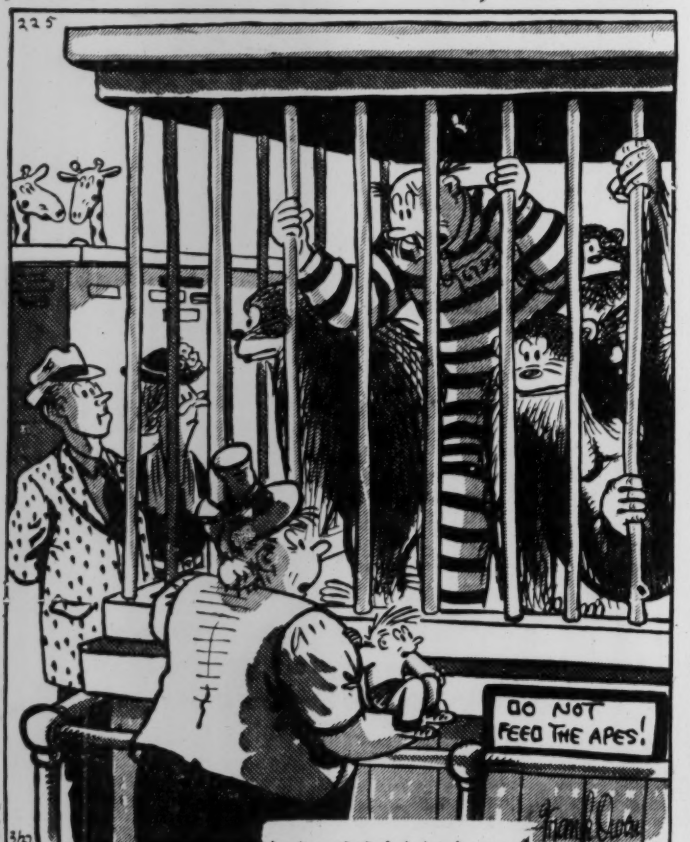

"That's nonsense," he said curtly, annoyed by her obstinacy. "You can't do it."

She resented his arrogant assurance. "Can't I?" she replied, her voice carefully indifferent.

"Of course you can't. In the first place you don't know how. Already you have become entangled with some men no better than outlaw-wild unscrupulous fellows. In the second place, a young lady can't mess around with printing."

JASPER

By Frank Owen

"But they're tearing down the jail house to build a new one and they had to put me some place!"

er's ink and get into the squalid political brawls that every editor must face. Her place is in the home, where she is shielded and protected by the love of a good man from the evils of the world."

There was a poised steeliness in her bearing. "After I'm all splashed with ink and mud you can remember that you warned me," Mr. Mosely.

He was still trying to conceal his anger. His smile was meant to be indulgent to her folly.

"I am older than you, Miss Eliot, and more experienced. Believe me, I am speaking for your own good. Young ladies do not edit newspapers. To try to do so would be to soil yourself. You are too young to start life by making a bad mistake." He concluded bluntly, sharply. "I'll give you twice what the 'Sentinel' is worth. I'll buy up the rest of your uncle's holdings at a fair valuation."

"No, thank you," she said without the least hesitation. "I don't want twice what the paper is worth. If you want to buy it the price will be a dollar a year."

He was still not ready to give in. "This isn't a joking matter, Miss Eliot," he said, his grave manner rebuking her levity. "You don't know what you are undertaking. It is a proud tradition of our country that young ladies do their part by preparing themselves to make happy homes for their future husbands. What you propose is not proper for a young lady."

"And if there isn't going to be any happy home for her to brighten?" Anne asked. "Is she to sit in a boarding house and embroider samplers?"

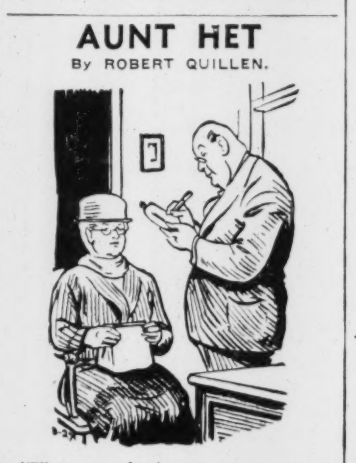

"That's too absurd to consider in your case, Miss Eliot," he answered blandly, with a little bow. "I think you are not quite reasonable, and that you know it yourself. If you loved yourself to do such a thing I am afraid people would not respect you. I am speaking plainly, with no intent to offend."

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21 and April 19 (ARIES)—Harmony rules before 3:06 p. m. and is a favorable time for making peace with others, and for working in matters related to art, music and entertainment. After 3:06 p. m. a feeling of nervousness may incline to mistakes, forgetfulness and arguments.

April 20 and May 20 (TAURUS)—The entire day and through 10:42 p. m. may be considered a negative day, when it will be more favorable to continue with affairs already under way and not inaugurate new conditions or undertake changes.

May 21 and June 20 (GEMINI)—Unexpected problems may confront you personally today and there is apt to be high tension and nervousness. If new conditions are inaugurated today, they may give you a head start from the strain of putting them over. A good day to stick to routine.

June 21 and July 22 (CANCER)—This should be a happy and busy day. The day favors business, social affairs, buying for adornment and dealings with women.

July 23 and August 22 (LEO)—The entire day and evening favors promoting your personal interests vigorously, but shun extravagances, and use care in the handling of funds and investments.

August 23 and September 22 (VIRGO)—The entire day and evening favors making personal contacts, seeking favors and interviews should meet with favor.

September 23 and October 22 (LIBRA)—Before 2:01 p. m. may be considered the better part of the day. An excellent period for business, domestic and mental work. After 2 p. m. avoid obligations that may place limitations on you in the future.

October 23 and November 21 (SCORPIO)—Energy and ambition will be high previous to 2:30 p. m. making this a propitious time for having dealings with publishers, managers, judges and intellectual people. After 2:30 p. m. will be a good time to retrench.

November 22 and December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—The entire day through 8:42 p. m. favors general business, talking finances, for advancing personal interests and intellectual people. After 8:42 p. m. avoid haste and do not insist on promises.

December 22 and January 19 (CAPRICORN)—Throughout the day and evening be careful in the attitude that you take toward others. The tendency will be to make sudden decisions that are contrary to usual procedure. This is not a favorable day to take risks, especially if these risks involve strangers.

January 20 and February 18 (AQUARIUS)—Before 11:13 a. m. put your best foot forward, for you are likely to meet success either in a way that you will be reluctant to retrench.

February 19 and March 20 (PISCES)—Previous to 11:24 a. m. give your attention to necessary affairs and do not expect things to work out in a hurry. After 11:24 a. m. you should be able to arrange your plans more to your satisfaction, and your undertakings should encounter smooth progress.

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED.
Will you name the six countries with the greatest Jewish population?

Of the more than 16,000,000 Jews in the world, 4,500,000 are in the United States, 3,500,000 in Poland, 3,000,000 in Russia, 1,000,000 in Rumania, 450,000 in Palestine and less than 400,000 now in Germany.

Do Jews fast on New Year?

No. They fast on the day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), which is 10 days after Rosh Hashana (New Year).

Is it permissible to use steel wool in a house strictly observing the Jewish dietary laws?

Yes, but if soap is used with it, only kosher soap, that is, soap manufactured from vegetable products should be used.

CANADIAN LIBERALS

CANADIAN LIBERALS

LEAD IN BALLOTING

Mackenzie King's Government Appears To Be Returned to Office.

OTTAWA, March 26.—(P)—W. L. Mackenzie King's Liberal government appeared tonight to have won return to office on its plea for a general elections expression of approval from Canada on its conduct of the Dominion's share of the war.

The Canadian press announced at 9:17 p. m. that the return of the Mackenzie King government was assured and compared the liberal sweep to that of 1935. By that time Dr. R. J. Manion, head of the chief opposition, the National Government Party, and leader of the conservative opposition in the last parliament, had been defeated at Fort William, Ont., by a liberal, Don Mc Ivor.

Liberals Have Majority.

At 9:45 p. m. the party standings were: Liberals elected, 130; National Government, 24; Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, 2; other parties, 6; deferred, 1; doubtful, 82; total, 245.

The Liberals in first returns held firmly to their commanding position in the maritime provinces and in subsequent tabulations the sweep was carried into Quebec west and Ontario. First returns from the west indicated they were losing no ground there. Eleven cabinet ministers, one from Alberta, had been re-elected.

Soldiers Vote Not In.

The ballots of some 90,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen, almost a third of them in Canada, will not be reported for another week; tonight's returns are based on the

The government's war program has been under attack by the opposition Conservative party and by the Dissident Liberal, Mitchell Hepburn, premier of the province of Ontario, as weak and inefficient.

Generally light voting was indicated in the rural sectors of the east, where week end blizzards left some roads under paralyzing snowdrifts, and on the Pacific coast where rains prevailed.

Balloting was described as "average to heavy" in urban sections.

In past elections the Liberals have received support principally in the rural sections.

GEORGIA 'COUNCIL' CALLS FOR BALLOT UPON THIRD TERM

New Dealers Request President's Admission to State Primary, Disregarding Application.

Expressing confidence that voters of Georgia would approve a third term nomination for President Roosevelt, a committee of the Democratic Council of Georgia, a New Deal organization, yesterday asked the state Democratic executive committee to abrogate its rule requiring a candidate to sign his own application to enter any political race, and to call a presidential preferential primary for not later than June 15.

The request, which sponsors said later would be followed by a petition signed by 5,000 voters, was laid yesterday before Chairman Jim L. Gillis, of the state committee. Gillis said it would be presumptuous of him to say what action the committee will take, but promised to lay the petition before the full committee when it is called into session.

William Schley Howard, chairman of the Democratic council committee who headed the delegation calling on Gillis, said the action was being taken "without the knowledge or consent of President Roosevelt," adding that the move was being made by a group of the President's friends solely to show the confidence of the people in his administration.

Founded Year Ago. The Democratic Council of Georgia was founded a little over a year ago by a group headed by United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp, who was its first president. Camp resigned the presidency when the Hatch law became operative last year, but still maintains his membership in the organization. John T. Ferguson, of Tifton, is now president of the council.

Howard informed Chairman Gillis that the primary move was launched at a "mass meeting" of council members and other Democrats here on March 4, the seventh anniversary of President Roosevelt's first inauguration. He said the meeting was not announced at the time it was held for "various reasons."

"Serving on the primary committee with the Atlanta are Judge Earl Camp, of Dublin, Harry L. Strozler of Macon, Ben Neal of Millen, Mrs. R. L. Turman of Atlanta, and H. O. Hubert of Decatur. Mrs. W. R. Simpson of Decatur, a leading figure in the Democratic council, accom-

Passengers, but also prisoners. Prisoners of the snow. This New York-Oswego sleeper train was locked in a snowy waste by a spring blizzard, with help miles away. The picture was taken by a daring photographer who landed in a plane.

30-Foot Snowdrifts Melting In N. Y. Cause Flood Hazard

Whole Towns, Uncounted Thousands Still Are Marooned.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 26.—(UP)—Snow whipped up in drifts as high as 30 feet began melting today, adding the hazard of possible floods in the section of upper New York state already harassed by the worst blizzard since 1888.

The temperature rose above freezing in most of the stricken area today. Serious floods would be inevitable in case of a rapid thaw and rainfall, according to F. B. Crocker, assistant district state engineer.

Whole towns and uncounted thousands of other persons were marooned by the snow. Some families had been snowbound a week, and authorities were alarmed by the possibility that their food supplies might be running low.

Transportation throughout the storm area was at a standstill or restricted to emergency cases. No buses were operating, and trains were hours behind schedule or not running at all. Hundreds of automobiles, abandoned by their owners who took shelter in farmhouses, were buried in snow which covered highways.

At least seven persons had died from causes attributed directly to the blizzard. Officials feared that renewed communications might bring word of more casualties.

Wyoming county was isolated, and snowplows seeking to clear roads to it met with no immediate success.

"If they don't get through soon we'll face a milk shortage," Policeman Clifford Coefield reported by telephone from that county. "It is impossible to reach some parts of the county even with horse and sleigh."

In the Laurentian mountains of adjacent Canada, where the storm also was severe, thousands of winter sports enthusiasts who went to resort for the week end, still were snowbound.

Danish fishermen have been warned not to use their radio senders in mine-infested waters, because such senders have been known to induce electrical currents strong enough to explode mines.

$900,000 AIRPLANE SAILS THROUGH TEST

19-Ton Transport May Open New Field in Big Craft.

ST. LOUIS, March 26.—(P)—A baldish little fellow from Seattle, who is as talkative as a clam today, piloted America's newest transport plane on its maiden flight, a test which bids fair to open up a little explored field in big airplane operation.

Eddie Allen, the test pilot, is an engineer-flier of the school which thinks the less said, the better.

His $900,000 plane, of a unique design as transport planes go, produced to solve the problem of carrying large cargoes as well as passengers, was the Curtiss-Wright "20," with a gross weight of 19 tons.

After 90 minutes of cruising around the St. Louis municipal airport, Lambert Field, Allen was asked how the new machine responded.

"Fine," he said.

Three years in the making, drafting board to sleek, 210-mile-an-hour transport, it has a greater cargo capacity—more than two and a half tons—than any now in use or built for use in the next five years. It will carry a maximum of 36 passengers, and gives promise, through new economies in operation, of affording the commercial airlines a chance to reduce fares.

SHAPLEY TO SPEAK ON STARS TONIGHT

Agnes Scott Students Will Hear Noted Harvard Astronomer.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, who probably knows as much as any man about the recent solar disturbances which have interrupted electrical communications throughout the nation, will speak at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Bucher Scott gymnasium of Agnes Scott College.

Dr. Shapley has been director of the huge Harvard observatory since 1921. While there he has contributed greatly to the advancement of astronomical knowledge and his discoveries include the present method of measuring stellar distances, by the observation of variable stars.

At present he is mapping the stars and superclusters of stars with Harvard's collection of sky photographs, the greatest classified plate collection of its kind in the world. Some of plates, in photo-slide form, will be projected to-night along with the motion pictures of the sun.

Refusal to admit he's ever licked is an admirable quality in an army man. Captain Oberlin M. Carter, of Chicago, has that quality. Court-martialed 42 years ago, he's still fighting to clear his name. He's shown in a hotel room in Washington, where he's to appear before a senate military affairs sub-committee.

TREES WILL HONOR STEPHENS, DAVIS

Judge Jule Felton To Speak in Marietta Today.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., March 26.—Judge Jule W. Felton, of the Georgia court of appeals, will be principal speaker at a Confederate tree dedication here at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The ceremonies will center around two trees—one dedicated to Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, and the other to Alexander Stephens, vice president. They are situated on the crest of a hill in the Confederate cemetery.

The dedication will be sponsored by the Kennesaw Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It will be held at the home of Mrs. A. S. Clay, across from the cemetery.

Flat white paint reflects back 75 to 85 per cent of light thrown on it; a light blue reflects 40 to 55 per cent; and dark brown 10 per cent or less.

Principal address will be made by Frank Jones, county historian. Immediately after the DeSoto unveilings, the chapter will unveil markers pointing to Camp Recovery, Fort Hughes, Fort Scott, and the Battle of Fowls-town.
